Political tactics to shift

(c) New York Times

Washington — The AFL-CIO, stung by a series of defections by Democratic members of Congress on labor issues this year, will make a major shift in its political tactics in 1978 and support only candidates who vote consistently with labor, according to the federation's top political operative.

Alexander Barkan, director of the Committee on Political Education, the federation's political arm, said his organization would no longer support Democratic and liberal candidates solely as the "lesser of two evils."

Gratuities are 'widespread'

Washington (AP) — The use by defense contractors of free sports tickets, hunting lodges, and other free items to woo Pentagon officers was more widespread than previously believed, a congressional study said Monday.

The Joint Committee on Defense Production released the results of a survey showing that 41 of the largest electronics, aerospace and ship building contractors have offered gratuities forbidden by Department of Defense regulations. The study was based on the years 1973 through 1975.

Congress ahead

Tokyo (AP) — The Chinese government, in a move to consolidate Chairman Hua Kuo-feng's power, announced it would convene a new National People's Congress next spring, two years ahead of schedule.

Laughter said healthy

New York (AP) — Doctors report increasing evidence that a person can laugh himself to health.

The November issue of Science Digest cites several studies in which laughter produced beneficial physical and mental results.

A hearty laugh benefits the lungs and clears the respiratory system, the researchers said, and also provides a healthy emotional outlet, discharges superfluous energy, combats boredom and alleviates social pressures.

Party plans name change

Denver (UPI) — Earl F. Dodge, a leading member of the National Prohibition Party, says mention of the organization makes people think of only one thing — Carrie Nation swinging a hatchet and smashing open kegs of demon rum.

And because of that image as a one-issue party, the party Monday announced it would change its name on a trial basis to the National Statesman Party. If the change proves successful at the polls next year, the new name could become permanent.

Grants to help poor agreed on

Washington (AP) — House and Senate energy conferees voted Monday to give low-income families federal fuel-conservation grants of up to $800 per family.

They also agreed to establish a $900 million program to finance energy conservation improvements in schools and hospitals.

And they reached tentative agreement on a measure requiring the government to set energy-efficiency standards for washing machines, clothes, dryers, air conditioners and a variety of other home appliances.

Conferees voted to give the Department of Energy two years to come up with the standards. Manufacturers would then have 180 days in which to put them into practice.

The $800 to be given to low income families could be used for home weatherization such as installation of storm doors or windows, purchase of insulation, and modification of furnaces. Specific guidelines are to be set by the Energy Department.

The conference panel is attempting to fashion a compromise national energy policy bill.

The votes came in a session marked by an angry exchange between Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., and a warning by chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., that he would not tolerate bickering among members.

The conferees have been plodding through the energy legislation passed by both the House and Senate in an effort to write a compromise national energy bill.

But in four days of meetings, few agreements have been reached and most of the big issues confronting the negotiating panel remain to be resolved.

As the conferees met in a Veterans Day session while the rest of Congress was in recess, Staggers warned that he would consider having members ousted from the panel if they could not refrain from making verbal attacks on each other.

"We can disagree without being disagreeable," Staggers asserted.

But a short while later, Dingell accused Jackson, leader of the Senate conferees, of speaking while Dingell had the floor.

"You're not going to be controlling my time, and you might as well make your mind up to it," he told Jackson.

"Then we're going to be here forever," Jackson retorted.

"I'm prepared to sit here until the snow flies," Dingell said.

The conferees agreed to make direct federal grants of up to $800 available to families earning up to one-fourth more than the national poverty level.

This provision was contained in the House-passed bill, which has the support of the Carter administration and includes most of the President's energy recommendations — proposals rejected by the Senate.

The conference committee must reconcile the House and Senate differences and produce a final bill.

The conferees also voted for a $300-million-a-year, three-year program of energy conservation grants to schools and hospitals.

Although the Senate bill would have distributed these funds on the basis of a state's population, Senate conferees voted 6-5 to go along with the funding distribution proposed by the House bill.

Under this formula, the Department of Energy would decide who got the grants. However, at the request of Senate conferees, the program was modified to provide that no state could receive more than 10 per cent or less than one-half of one per cent of the money.

Because of the number of schools and hospitals in the country, the grant money will be spread thinly, with conference leaders estimating that schools and hospitals may not receive much more than about $220 each under the program.

The conferees also went along with provisions in both House and Senate bills requiring states to have their own energy-conservation programs.

The government would have 90 days to come up with guidelines for these programs, then the states would have 90 days to propose them and after that the government would have an additional 60 days to approve or reject the plans.

City insurance premium leaps

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

The cost of Lincoln's insurance against judgments for false arrest and similar misdeeds by police and corrections officers is going up 750%.

City insurance expert Howard Fletcher told the City Council that only one insurance company is interested in insuring the city — at an annual cost of about $57,000, compared to the present $7,600.

The company that is now insuring the city in this area is canceling the coverage, although it reluctantly agreed to extend it 30 days to allow the city to find another carrier, Fletcher said.

He said he contacted several companies and was turned down flat. Only the Law Enforcement Insurance Co. Ltd. is interested in providing the coverage, he said. That coverage is purchased through the National Sheriff's Association.

Fletcher said the reason the city's present insurance company, Western Casualty and Surety Co., is dropping coverage against false arrest is because of high judgments that have been awarded in such cases nationally.

No large judgments have been collected against Lincoln lawmen, but the company has spent $24,000 in legal fees during the past three years defending such lawsuits.

"Insurance companies are pulling away from this left and right," Fletcher said. He noted that a $200,000 judgment was awarded in Omaha recently as a result of a suit against police.

Mayor Helen Boosalis says she thinks the city has no choice but to pay the steep premium for insurance. Fletcher said that by law the city is responsible for the actions of its police officers and elected officials.

The coverage would also protect the mayor and City Council members if they are named in lawsuits against police.

City Finance Director Jim Mallon told the council that paying for the insurance will strain the newly adopted city budget, but Police Chief George Hansen said he can come up with about $30,000 out of the police budget.

Mallon said money must also be transferred from the contingency account allotted for emergencies to cover the bulk of the remaining sum.

In response to questioning by Councilman Joe Hampton, Fletcher said he is exploring the possibility of making the city self-insuring, an approach in which the city would bank large sums against possible claims.

Fletcher said it will be next spring before he will make a recommendation on that approach, which is being used by some other cities.

Police alert airports for hit-and-run plane

Miami (AP) — South Florida airports have been asked to be on the lookout for a single-engine plane that swooped down and killed a woman walking on a rural dirt road southwest of here.

The unidentified woman, in her late 20s, was struck Sunday afternoon, Dade County police said.

"I was heading westbound when the plane flew over my head," said Robert Cook of Miami. "It touched down for second, moved sharply to the left, then took back off.

"Right after that, seven people drove toward me from near the point the plane had touched down and called me and said that a plane had hit a woman and then tried to hit their cars."

Police said they have only a partial description of the airplane — a white single-engine craft with red lettering.

"We believe it belongs to a local person because it was observed flying in the area before the woman was hit. The activity the plane was taking, flying around the fields, was not what an out-of-state person would do," said homicide detective Chuck Major.

"It's hard to believe someone would try to swoop down on someone and kill them," Majors said. "Few people can fly a plane that well, to actually bump something on the ground. You're putting a thin line between (that and) killing yourself and crashing the plane. But that is not to say someone wasn't attempting horseplay, or trying to frighten the woman," he said.

Columnist's complaints challenged

By Gerry Switzer
Star Staff Writer

A nationally syndicated columnist who cited a Lincoln motel as an example of slipshod service has had his facts challenged by the motel manager.

James J. Kilpatrick, writing in a newspaper column which appeared last week, said his two-night stay at Lincoln's Airport Holiday Inn in late September was "not a happy" one.

Although he rates most Holiday Inns as "fair" to "good," Kilpatrick said the Lincoln motel was "having its problems." It "didn't even have soap in the room," he wrote.

And that's where his account of the stay begins to differ from that of Paul Jorgensen, motel manager.

Jorgensen said he is sure there was soap in the room. He said he has received many complimentary letters about the motel and its service since a remodeling project added 35 new rooms.

Kilpatrick, whose column regretted that an elementary sense of hospitality seems to be lacking in too many motels and hotels nationwide, complained that the Lincoln's inn's courtesy car had broken down three days before and no backup car was provided.

Jorgensen, however, said that Kilpatrick, like other motel guests, was picked up at the airport by an employe in the employe's car and returned to the airport by the same means.

The Washington-based columnist charged that the restaurant "vended a piece of meat, uncertainly labeled a filet mignon, that had not passed within two feet of the tenderloin."

The motel manager countered by wondering why Kilpatrick did not complain about the steaks when they were served. "He even left the waitress a tip and put it on his credit card," Jorgensen said.

The journalist wrote that the carpets, bedspreads and drapes in his room had apparently been chosen to achieve the most "nauseous possible clash of colors."

Jorgensen suggested that the color scheme could not have been that jarring, since the columnist waited four hours after his arrival before complaining.

But don't think that Kilpatrick has it in for Lincoln. He reported "a vastly more dismal experience" at the Las Vegas Hilton.

There, he wrote, he had to be assigned five rooms before he found one where the television worked and the previous occupants had actually checked out. Even then, the sheets were dirty.

Kilpatrick says all a traveler "really wants on the road is a little tender loving care, and it seems to be hard to come by."

'Oh, Calcutta!' not no-no in this suburb

Birmingham, Mich. (AP) — The show may go on and the clothes may come off, a federal judge ruled Monday.

U.S. District Judge Lawrence Gubow allowed a theater in this affluent Detroit suburb to remain open for the six-day run of "Oh! Calcutta!" a musical with nude scenes and simulated sex acts.

He issued an injunction that blocks city fire officials from enforcing a fire sprinkler code for 10 days.

The production is on a 75-city tour, and the problems here were only the latest. Last week, officials in Cincinnati halted the production with a court injunction, and in Kentucky, police arrested nine members of the cast after watching a performance.

Young favors U.N. sanctions against South Africa

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young said Monday he personally favors some form of sanctions against the government of South Africa, which carried out a sweeping purge of black leaders and organizations last week.

Young spoke with reporters following a Security Council meeting where black-ruled African nations called on the council to order a mandatory arms embargo and other sanctions against South Africa's white-minority regime. The United States previously has vetoed such an arms embargo proposal.

Young replied "Yes" when asked if he favored sanctions against the Pretoria government.

He stressed that this was a personal opinion and added: "The president and secretary of state will have to decide what sanctions are appropriate in these conditions."

But the black U.N. envoy, who earlier in the day met with President Carter in Washington, indicated the United States would seek some middle ground short of a binding arms embargo. "I certainly hope we could come up with a position we wouldn't have to veto ... (one) we could all agree to," he said.

Young added he expects the Carter administration to make a decision within the next two days.

The council debate, scheduled to run four days, was requested by the 49-nation African Group after South Africa banned virtually all important black organizations, closed two black-operated newspapers and arrested some 50 black leaders last Wednesday.

Ambassador Mahmoud Mestiri of Tunisia opened the debate in the 15-member council with a call for approval of four resolutions providing tough punitive actions including an arms embargo.

"If the United Nations does not meet Pretoria's latest challenge, then racial justice cannot be had anywhere in southern Africa," he said.

In Nairobi, Kenya, at a United Nations Day ceremony, Kenyan Foreign Minister Munyua Waiyaki called South Africa "an unpleasant thorn" in Africa's side and said "the stage has been reached when the thorn must be removed by force, however unpleasant this might be."

He added that Kenya "is resolved to assist the freedom fighters ... materially, politically and morally until African people gain their legitimate rights in that country."

International sanctions against South Africa could pose a problem for the Carter administration's southern Africa policy, part of which has been to seek South African help in arranging black majority rule in neighboring Rhodesia.

One Western diplomatic source viewed the call for a mandatory arms embargo as an "opening bid." He added: "We haven't even begun to negotiate with the Africans on this."

The United States, Britain and France in 1975 vetoed a resolution calling for a mandatory world ban on sales of arms to South Africa. The United States and Britain now abide by a voluntary arms embargo.

The three Western powers were understood to be undecided on whether to veto such an embargo proposal this time.

In reaction to the South African crackdown, the State Department last week recalled its ambassador to Pretoria, William Bowdler, for consultations. The Netherlands and West Germany have done likewise.

A veto could undo some of Young's success in improving U.S. relations with black Africa. But voting for sanctions would antagonize South African whites and jeopardize the U.S. position as a mediator in the racial disputes in southern Africa.

The General Assembly debate on another issue, South Africa's defiance of U.N. demands that it surrender control of South-West Africa, was drawing to a close Monday.

Strict anti-hijacking measures announced

Bonn, West Germany (AP) — West German border guards will enforce strict anti-hijack measures in West Germany and for West German planes abroad, the Ministry of Transport announced Monday.

The measures have been imposed because of the hijacking of a Lufthansa plane that cost the life of the pilot and three terrorists last week. Eighty-six hostages were rescued in a daring German commando operation in Mogadishu, Somalia.

The measures include requiring:
— All passengers to arrive 45 minutes before take-off.
— Passengers to identify all baggage.
— Limiting each passenger to a single piece of carry-on luggage.
— A watch over all aircraft on the ground.
— Armed security at airports.
— Supervision of airport personnel and special measures for freight.

The measures are to be applied at all West German airports and to West German planes at foreign airports.

Hans Ruhnau, Transport Ministry state secretary, said at a news conference that 100 to 150 unarmed West German Border Guards, protected by armed local authorities, already were protecting passengers boarding Lufthansa planes at 40 or more airports abroad.

Among the foreign airports which have agreed to allow German guards to inspect passengers is the terminal at Palma de Majorca, where four terrorists, armed with grenades, guns and plastic explosives, boarded the Lufthansa Boeing 737 they hijacked Oct. 13.

Ruhnau spoke at a routine government news conference which also was concerned with Stuttgart officials' failure to keep guns and other forbidden items away from West Germany's most notorious terrorists in the specially built maxiumum-security Stammheim prison.

"All one can do is shake one's head," said Sepp Binder, Justice Ministry spokesman.

Despite daily searches and a new law supposedly isolating the inmates from each other, the outside world and even their lawyers, the prisoners also had a transistor radio, a stomach catheter, half a pound of explosive and an unidentified "mass of a putty-like substance," Binder said.

And they converted an unused radio-antenna in the wall into an inter-cell telegraph system.

Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl Raspe, whose freedom the Lufthansa hijackers had sought, were found dead in the cells hours after commandos rescued all hostages on the jetliner and killed three of the four hijackers.

The government said Baader and Raspe had shot themselves with pistols smuggled into their cells and Ensslin had hanged herself.

In Stuttgart, Mayor Manfred Rommel defended a decision to allow the bodies of Baader, Miss Ensslin and Raspe, who were sentenced to life in prison last April for a series of bombing that killed four U.S. servicemen, to be buried Thursday in a local cemetery.

Sunday morning a sign reading "We mourn the victims of fascism," apparently a sympathetic reference to the three terrorists, was found painted on the wall of the cemetery's memorial hall.

Local citizens have criticized the mayor, fearing that the graves may become a shrine for sympathizers of the terrorists. But Rommel told a news conference:

"Enmity must end somewhere, and for me in this case it has ended with death."

Explosion kills four

The occupants of this house, tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swineheart and two sons, Brian, 16, and Russell, 9, were killed in an explosion and fire. The house in Brunswick, Ohio, was leveled. A third son, Michael, was on his way to Miami University at Oxford when the explosion occurred in the early evening.

U.N. debate on air piracy averts strike by airline pilots

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly's steering committee heeded a call by airline pilots for action to curb airborne terrorism and agreed unanimously Monday to hold an urgent debate on "the safety of international civil aviation."

The debate is likely to begin Wednesday in the assembly's special political committee. Capt. Derry F. Pearce, president of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations, is expected to be a leadoff speaker.

The 25-member steering committee accepted a request by 42 nations that the assembly add air piracy to its agenda for consideration as a matter of "important and urgent character."

The new item was presented by Ambassador Peter Jankowitsch of Austria on behalf of the co-sponsors, which included the United States but not Israel, which had expressed the wish to be a co-sponsor.

An Israeli spokesman said Israel was barred from becoming a co-sponsor for fear that it might alienate Arab sponsors.

"This is a disgusting, alarming exhibition of a cowardly surrender to blackmail by those who are behind much of international terror," Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog said in a statement. "These same forces will sabotage efforts in the United Nations to fight terror as they have done successfully in the past."

A Western European diplomat earlier denied there was any discrimination against Israel.

U.N. diplomats agreed to push ahead with the new debate after the federation pilots postponed a two-day strike they had planned to begin Tuesday unless the United Nations agreed to take up their demands for action.

The pilots, reacting to the recent hijacking of a Lufthansa jetliner and the murder of its West German pilot, called for more stringent security measures to prevent air piracy and commitments from governments that hijackers will not be given asylum.

The committee debate is expected to center on an anti-hijacking resolution drafted Friday by a group of Western and Third World nations. The resolution would condemn hijackings and the taking of hostages, prescribe tightened airport security and urge countries to ratify existing treaties against illegal seizure of airliners.

Will Britain make robots?

London Telegraph

London — Robots capable of self-controlled movement and simple tasks could be in production in Britain within the next five years. They will do simple and often unpleasant jobs, using a built-in computer as a "brain."

Their work will range from stacking goods in warehouses to cleaning sewers or dragging heavy hoses for firefighting.

Research is being carried out at Warwick University. Negotiations are under way to build a number of prototypes for use in industry.

Dr. Michael Larcombe, who teaches at the university, is leading the research. He says that with work in the United States held back because of cutbacks in government funds, Britain now ranks among the world leaders in this field. The Soviet Union and other Communist countries also are interested but, according to Larcombe, they appear committed to legs, trying to produce monsters with up to eight legs with remote controls. They are believed to be encountering considerable difficulties.

"We never felt the urge to make any legs," Larcombe says. He describes his present experimental rig as "looking like a heap of junk wandering around." It is, in fact, a tracked and wheeled vehicle about 6 feet long, 4 feet high and 2½ feet wide, with touch and sound sensors and "grab hands."

It is battery-powered, carries a small computer weighing about 2 pounds, and bears little resemblance to the conventional image of a robot.

The machine and several earlier models have successfully moved around the laboratories, finding their way by touch sensors and sonar signals, using reflected sounds the way bats do.

Torture is one of abuses said institutionalized in Chile

Geneva, Switzerland (UPI) — A U.N. committee reported Monday that torture and abuse of human rights is "systematic and institutionalized" in Chile.

Violations include torture, arbitrary arrest, intimidation and controls over the freedom of expression, the ad hoc working group of experts on Chile said in a report which will go to the current session of the U.N. General Assembly.

The five-member group, set up in 1975, said it was "unable to conclude . . . that respect for human rights has been restored in Chile."

"On the contrary," it said, "the group feels obliged to point to some critical areas where violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms, in some cases systematic and institutionalized, depict a disturbing situation in Chile.

The U.N. observers, who have been rebuffed in their efforts to visit Chile to examine the human rights situation first-hand, said in their report they could not "escape the conclusion . . . that Chilean authorities systematically refuse to respect the right to liberty and security of person of those believed to be opposed to the present regime."

However, the report added, "a large number of political detainees have been released, the scale of arrests and detention has diminished, and the accounts of torture are not as shocking as those reflected in previous reports."

Although no official number for Chilean political prisoners exists, the International Red Cross and the Chilean Roman Catholic Church have reported 1,015 people are missing and presumed political prisoners.

The group also expressed concern at what it called "the inability of the Chilean judicial system to effectively protect the liberty and security of the individual or to call to judgment or punish those responsible for the illegal detention, torture and disappearance of detainees."

"The judiciary appears to have abdicated before the executive," it said.

The U.N. committee said it still hopes Chile will permit an on-the-spot investigation in 1978. The report noted the Chilean government has so far "used delaying tactics" in answering requests for a visit.

Members of the committee were Ghulan Ali Allana of Pakistan, the chairman, Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador, Abdoulaye Dieye of Senegal, Felix Armacora of Austria and M.J.T. Kamara of Sierra Leone.

Article claims Israel stole U.S. uranium

New York (UPI) — Israel has assembled a secret nuclear arsenal through uranium thefts in Europe and America, which were subsequently covered up, according to an article released Monday by Rolling Stone.

"The CIA estimates Israel has 15 nuclear bombs, and that's a conservative figure, and we've heard reports which are unconfirmed that they have up to 150 bombs," Howard Kohn, who co-authored the article with Barbara Newman, told a news conference at the magazine's headquarters.

The story was denied by the office of the Israeli consul general in New York, which said, "The entire story is baseless and pure speculation and is being circulated by the enemies of Israel to blacken the reputation of Israel." The office repeated the official Israeli stand that Israel will not be the first country to introduce nuclear weapons to the Middle East.

The article said Mossad, the Israeli intelligence service, set up a special commando unit in 1967 or 1968 that carried out four uranium hijackings in Europe — two with the cooperation of the French and West German governments.

Israel took to hijacking after it was forced to stop a 10-year smuggling operation at the Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp. processing facility in Appolo, Pa., which netted 200 to 400 pounds of bomb-grade uranium, the article said.

"That's enough for two Hiroshima-type bombs," Kohn said.

Rolling Stone said the stolen material was used to give Israel a "last-resort military alternative" in its conflict with the Arabs.

The two authors said their two principal sources were a highly placed Pentagon consultant and a former official of the National Security Agency.

The General Accounting Office and three congressional committees currently are investigating the thefts of nuclear material in the United States.

The Nuclear Resulatory Commission has estimated that some 8,000 pounds of uranium and plutonium are "missing" in the United States since the nuclear program began 20 years ago, including "a significant amount of nuclear material" from a plant in Irwin, Tenn., the authors said.

The magazine claimed the CIA brought the Pennsylvania operation to the attention of President Lyndon Johnson in 1966, but Johnson ordered then-CIA Director Richard Helms to keep the matter secret.

"The Ford White House was also briefed. . . (and) the same information was handed over to the Carter White House in early 1977. It has now become a point of contention in the ongoing debate over whether to indict Helms in the unrelated CIA-Chile case," the article said.

"Helms has indicated he might feel compelled to divulge certain government secrets he is indicted, and Carter administration officials allegedly are worried that the (Pennsylvania) case and Johnson's coverup may be among them," it said.

Rolling Stone said that in France during early 1968, the commando unit used tear gas to overpower the driver of a 25-ton truck full of uranium and then smuggled the uranium to clandestine military bases in the Negev desert.

Another nuclear shipment was hijacked in England soon afterwards, rolling Stone said.

The magazine said the same unit subsequently pulled two such hijackings with the cooperation of the French and West German governments in exchange for cash and advanced nuclear technology. These hijackings were staged to disguise the transactions, it said.

Ray wants to fire lawyer

James Earl Ray said Monday he wants to fire his lawyer and hire assassinations buff Mark Lane to represent him at his upcoming escape trial.

Ray, the convicted assassin of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., asked a Tennessee judge to make the change at a hearing on pretrial motions for his escape trial, scheduled to begin Thursday.

Economic cooperation backed

Manuel Perez-Guerrero, the Venezuelan co-chairman of the Paris "North-South" economic conference, said Monday that Western nations must expand economic cooperation with the Third World in order to maintain their own industrialized economies. He spoke at a U.N. symposium.

Trib chairman Simon fired

William E. Simon, treasury secretary and energy czar in the Nixon and Ford administrations, was asked to resign as a member and chairman of the board of the Trib, New York's newest morning newspaper, it was announced Monday.

Leonard Saffir, the newspaper's publisher and editor-in-chief, made the announcement of Simon's firing. At the same time, Saffir said the paper will publish its first regular edition Jan. 9.

Iowan wins husking title

Tony Polich of Des Moines, Iowa, husked 408 pounds of corn in 20 minutes to win the National Corn-Husking championship in Oakley, Kan.

Polich won his title in the national finals, which drew more than 50 contestants from nine states.

Corn-husking as a sport started in 1922 in Iowa, with the first national contest two years later. These continued until the early 1940s, then were revived in Oakley three years ago.

Second place went to John Jackson of Osage City, Kan., who won the national title in 1975 and the Kansas championship a year ago. Joe Anholt of Fort Dodge, Iowa, finished third.

Postcard

By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — October nights. Nippy and clear. If you haven't lent a helping hand on homework lately, you are in for a surprise.

The girl moppet came downstairs with a sharpened pencil and a piece of ruled paper. "Are you busy?" "Yes," I said. "Well, this will only take a minute," she said.

That being settled, she poised the pencil and asked: "What was it like in the olden days?"

I said: "What olden days? How would I know about olden days?"

She said: "Like when you were a boy."

I said: "Excuse me for minute. I think I'm going to need a martini. Have you fed the cats yet?"

Olden days, eh? I said: "OK. Most of the time in the olden days I was scalping Indians. How's that?"

☆ ☆ ☆

She said: "What I'm supposed to find out is how you felt about women. Did you look down on them as inferior beings?"

I said: "Who put you up to this? Do you realize what could happen to me if I answered that either way? Are you supposed to ask me?"

She said: "Well, not exactly. I'm supposed to answer the questions. But the teacher, Miss Smock, said we could ask somebody old."

I took a little bite of martini. I said: "Tell Miss Smock I'm sheltering behind the Fifth Amendment."

I said: "You can quote me that I always regarded the fair sex an lilies of the field, pure and simple." I said: "Scratch that 'simple.' Make it 'pure and innocent.' "

☆ ☆ ☆

The class is called "Changing Roles." I said: "That's a good title. What's changing?"

She said: "Women's roles are changing. Now I have to answer this one. Listen: 'A teacher says there were no Founding Mothers. Only men fought the Revolution and made the Constitution.' "

She said: "Now it says: 'Show that his opinion is wrong.' "

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "Why 'his' opinion? How come it's a 'he'?"

She said: "I think Miss Smock makes it up. So we can show the changing role."

I said: "Well, there was Betsy Ross. Who would have sewed the flag? I don't think Jefferson or Washington were much of a hand with needle and thread."

I said: "There was a chick name of Molly Pitcher who loaded cannon or something. Anyway, "I said, "I wasn't anywhere near born during the Revolution. And I don't want to get in one now."

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "If there were Founding Fathers, there had to be Founding Mothers. You can't be one unless you have the other. That's my idea.

"So the teacher — the he teacher — is wrong. Though I must say he is an idiot to come out in print with such statements. He should keep it to himself. No matter how much tenure he's got."

She said: "OK. Now here's another question: 'How has women's sexuality shanged?' "

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "Why don't you ask a woman? What would I know about things like that?" (You don't get an old campaigner into a mine field like that.)

Thus we spend the October evenings in war games. Miss Smock fires the loaded questions via the homing pigeon. I try to keep my head down.

"Fetch the gin and some ice," I said. "As George remarked to Martha at Valley Forge. There's a dear."

Vote in Panama said signal to Senate

Panama City, Panama (UPI) — The closer-than-expected 2-to-1 national vote in favor of the new Panama Canal treaties is a signal to the U.S. Senate that Panama is not completely satisfied with terms of the agreements, a government negotiator said Monday.

More than 90% of the country's 800,000 voters went to the polls Sunday, officials reported. With 95% of the color-coded paper ballots counted, the vote was 468,664 yes and 228,697 no.

Another 12,285 ballots were spoiled, officials said.

"A massive vote in favor wasn't expected because we're paying a price for the treaties," negotiator Carlos Lopez Guevara told reporters.

Downplaying an earlier prediction by Panama's chief canal treaty negotiator, Romulo Escobar Bethancourt, that the treaty would win 85% approval, Lopez Guevara said, "We're sending a message to the U.S. Senate that we're not entirely satisfied with the treaties."

U.S. officials in Panama had privately predicted a 90% favorable vote.

Gen. Omar Torrijos, Panama's head of government, predicted Sunday that the U.S. Senate also would approve the treaties, under which Panama will gain control of the canal by the year 2000. He had no immediate public comment on the results of the plebiscite here.

Vice President Gerardo Gonzalez, who directed the government's 64-day campaign to drum up support for the treaties, said some Panamanians apparently switched their votes after Torrijos met Carter in Washington 10 days ago and reaffirmed the U.S. right to intervene militarily to safeguard the canal.

Gonzalez also said in an interview that American residents of the Canal Zone influenced "no" votes in backward regions of Panama.

He offered this as an explanation for rejection of the treaties by the Panamanian Indians on San Blas Island, who voted no and hoisted the Stars and Stripes on a flagpole during voting in the resort area. They said they feared approval of the treaties would scare off American tourists.

Commenting on opposition to the treaties by leftist students, Gonzalez said, "Twenty-three years is a long time for young people," referring to the length of time the United States will still run the Canal Zone.

Fabian Echevers, head of the Independent Lawyers Movement and a spokesman for opponents of the treaties, said: "Time played on the government's side. If the plebiscite had been held in December, the treaties would have been rejected."

There were no displays of public reaction to the vote Monday. Schools were closed so teachers who manned polling booths could rest.

Chief justice hands a defeat to Eskimos

Washington (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger refused to alter a lower court's order Monday that confronted American Eskimos with a one-year ban on hunting for bowhead whale.

Burger's refusal, announced by a court spokesman with no added comment, represented a victory for the State Department and a bitter defeat for Eskimos. The Eskimos had claimed the hunting ban would do great harm to their culture and rob them of a prime source of protein.

Authorities estimate that between 600 and 2,000 bowhead whales survive in the Arctic seas.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington earlier in the day overturned a federal trial judge's order that would have forced the State Department to object formally to the one-year hunting ban. It was the appeals court's ruling which Burger left intact.

The Supreme Court ruling came just 90 minutes before the 7 p.m. CDT deadline for the State Department objection to be filed with the International Whaling Commission.

A U.S. objection to the ban would have permitted Eskimos to continue to kill small numbers of endangered whale in their semi-annual hunts, but State Department spokesmen had said there could be grave international and ecological ramifications to such an objection.

The appeals court ruling said that a forced objection could upset "the ongoing effort of the United States government to establish and administer effective international machinery for the protection of marine mammals."

Government attorneys told the appeals court Monday that U.S. responsibility toward Eskimos "does not require that they be able to engage in the hunting of marine mammals."

Legion commander says canal vote encouraging

Augusta, Maine (UPI) — The national commander of the American Legion Monday said he was encouraged by the size of Panamanian opposition to a plan to take control of the Panama Canal from the United States.

"Our primary concern and one of the greatest concerns of all Americans should be the matter of the proposed Panama Canal treaties," Robert C. Smith of Springhill, La., told a news conference at the Maine Statehouse.

The treaties which would turn control of the canal and its adjacent zone over to Panama by the year 2000 were approved by a 2-to-1 margin, but Smith said Panamanian leaders had indicated there would be no strong opposition.

"We're opposed to any change in the sovereignty of the Panama Canal."

Terry promises leadership in farmer strike effort

Terry Carpenter, who has raised a lot of hell in long political and business careers, says he is available to raise some more. He says he'll help lead the farmers strike scheduled for mid-December if action is not taken by then to raise farm prices to parity levels.

The western Nebraska political legend says if asked, he'll travel, go on television, do just about anything to publicize the plight of food producers. But, he says, it won't be an orthodox campaign he'll wage, and if farm strike leaders want orthodox leadership "then I'm not the man."

Farmers need "someone to take the bull by the horns and create a disturbance," he says. "Pressure" is a word he uses when talking tactics.

The actual role Carpenter, who has most recently been involved in a "disturbance" in Scotts Bluff County over property taxes, will take has not yet been determined, but there is no doubt that farmers will have to do more than just talk about the strike if they want to succeed in making their point. They will need someone in the Carpenter mold to help out.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland in a recent interview seemed to dismiss the possibility of the threatened strike actually coming off. He called it "just a threat — an attempt to call attention to the seriousness of the agricultural economic situation, particularly regarding producers who have had three and four years of financial losses in livestock and now a drop in grain prices."

Bergland also said it is unfair to blame President Carter for farmers' problems. Of course it is unfair: Carter, as Bergland pointed out, inherited a huge wheat surplus and a trend toward declining prices aided by the all-out production philosophy pushed by the previous administration. But it is now Carter's problem and his chief agricultural spokesman and administrator had better be sensitive to the concerns demonstrated by those involved in the farmers strike.

What we seem to have at present is a movement (the farmers who threaten to strike) in search of cohesion and in need of forceful, dynamic leadership on the one hand and on the other an administration and established farm organizations who refuse to take the strikers seriously.

If the former finds what it's looking for the latter may be forced to listen.

South Africa policy: walking on eggs

Anthony Lewis

The turn of the screw in South Africa poses extremely delicate problems in diplomacy for President Carter. His whole new policy toward Africa, and beyond that, important relationships with friendly countries, may be affected by what he does or does not do in response to Pretoria's sweeping new moves to silence the critics of official racism.

A test is likely to come in the next few days. The United Nations Security Council will be pressed by the African countries to take action. Inevitably, what the council does will depend to a great extent on the American position — and that will present awkward questions for the Carter administration.

If the United States favors a strongly worded resolution, it risks conflict with Britain, which relies on its South African trade and investment. Indeed, Britain or France might veto the resolution. On the other hand, if the United States vetoes or otherwise blocks action, the administration's careful effort to improve relations with African countries will be severely damaged. Its United Nations representative, Andrew Young, will in particular have his credibility on the line.

Moreover, quite apart from the pitfalls of United Nations politics, there is a substantive question of the greatest difficulty: What actions by the outside world may have a useful effect on South Africa at this time? But if there are no easy answers, it is possible to suggest some principles that should guide Carter and his advisors as they wrestle with the South African issue.

First, the United States has a strong interest — a self-interest — in taking a clear stand against the arrests and bannings ordered by the South African government last week. In the narrowest terms, it is an economic interest. American trade with black Africa has zoomed to the point where Nigeria alone accounts for more than South Africa. Carter's recognition of this new reality is symbolized by his stop in Nigeria on next month's planned world trip.

More broadly, Carter's attempt to make Western values matter once again in foreign affairs is at risk here. The risk lies in the very fact that the South African government claims to be defending those values — to be resisting communism. If the United States seemed to be acquiesing in that bizarre claim, the Carter policy would deserve to be taken with a grain of cynicism.

Second, realism is essential. The United States should be clear — to others and to itself — that it cannot determine events in South Africa. Empty rhetoric would be especially unhelpful.

Realism requires, too, an understanding that American policy on South Africa has to be good for the long haul. As outside pressure increases, Prime Minister Vorster may well retaliate — by such steps as an oil blockade of Botswana or other black countries dependent on South Africa. We should be thinking of how to deal with that.

Third, the United States should be wary of finally closing the door on Vorster and his Nationalist colleagues. Vorster, in defending last week's repression, needled Carter by saying that American disapproval would be "irrelevant." But it would be unwise to reply in kind to such provocation.

For all the brutal suddenness of last week's actions, there is still some slim hope of a more rational policy from the Vorster government after the election to be held Nov. 30. Some Nationalist politicians, at least, want to make changes — and want the United States to keep the pressure on for change. That means that the United States should move by stages, keeping some leverage, rather than taking such a step as, for example, breaking diplomatic relations altogether.

Fourth, whatever measures are undertaken should have a broad measure of support from the international community, and from the American public. Vorster is highly sensitive to differences in American opinion, and he would quickly exploit any differences manifest in the public or Congress.

In this regard, there can be no substitute for a strong leadership role by the president. Only he can make clear the American interest in seeing a change in South Africa. Only he can make the case to the country that, with no allusions of early success, we must nevertheless act as a matter of self respect.

Carter must convince the world that America has a commitment: a concern about South Africa that will not be deflected. Vice President Mondale told Vorster that — told him, for example, that we would welcome South Africa's help on the neighboring problems of Rhodesia and Namibia but would not, in exchange, ease up on criticism on her own racism. Firm U.S. action now would make that position convincing.

Finally, it is vital to convey the sense that whatever we do now is just one step in what will be gradual but increasing pressure for change. The recall of the U.S. ambassador for consultations sent a signal. A next step might be action to discourage new investment in South Africa, both through a U.N. resolution and by cutting off our own Export-Import Bank loan guaranties. If Vorster acts violently and speaks angrily, it is the more necessary for Carter to react soberly and steadily.

Israel no policy failure

On the list of things for which President Carter is currently being taken to task in various circles is the state of developments in the Middle East. Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker has suggested that Carter is trying "to buy peace by sacrificing Israel on the altar of American foreign policy."

Baker calls for a return to the step-by-step diplomacy of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The flaw in that thinking is that if Kissinger's policy was so successful, why is the Middle East still such a problem?

One might well wonder if the Carter administration is not the first in a long while to take the bull by the horns in Arab-Israeli affairs. Surely, the facts in the Middle East must be faced by someone at some time or that troubled area will never find peace.

The facts are that neither Israel, the Arabs nor the Palestinians will get all they want from any solution to their problems. We believe the Carter administration is correct in its position that to be effective it must maintain confidence in its sincerety on the part of all interests.

That does not mean that we abandon Israel and the administration has plainly stated this. Further, we have seen nothing to indicate that any of the Middle East principals see the situation any differently than that.

What the Carter administration is seeking to do is to push all sides toward a workable compromise. There is simply no way that Israel can keep all the occupied lands it has taken. There is no way, either, for the Arabs to get all that land back. And finally, some kind of permanent settlement for the Palestinians has to be found.

A compromise in those areas would not be to the liking of either Arabs or Jews but it would sure beat another war. That is our concept of what the Carter policy is all about — to force the parties into unwanted but workable agreements.

It is difficult to believe that, in the final analysis, this is not clearly recognized by Middle East leaders. None of them could pursue such a settlement and remain politically viable at home but they could accede to such an end under protest.

Nor does that end take great exception to Kissinger's policy. Kissinger pursued it in a different manner than Carter but it pretty well boiled down to the same thing.

Despite Dole, treaty chances improve

Marquis Childs

Washington — Thanks to the orchestration of a whole series of moves, chances for ratification of the Panama Canal treaties have substantially improved.

One step forward was President Carter's meeting with Panama's Omar Torrijos Herrera in which they agreed on the right of the United States to act against aggression or threats directed against the canal.

A committee of distinguished Americans representing a broad spectrum of the nation headed by Averell Harriman will help to convince the public of the vital importance of Senate ratification of the treaties that were negotiated under four presidents. The committee runs the gamut from AFL-CIO President George Meany to former leading American military commanders.

By a kind of inverse ratio, the tactics of some of the loudest opponents of the treaties have helped to create a favorable or at least a tolerant atmosphere. Foremost among the opponents is Sen. Robert Dole, R.-Kan., who has used a variety of hit-and-run tactics to discredit the treaties and those who negotiated them.

Dole began by making public a leaked State Dept. cablegram from Panama. The message was suggesting that a wide difference exists between two sides over the right of intervention to maintain operation of the canal.

In an open hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, challenged the ethics of making public a classified document. Dole breathed his defiance and bellowed out his intention of doing everything in his power to stop the "give-away" of the canal.

His next move was to raise the charge that several years back members of the Torrijos clan had had a connection with drug-smuggling operations. This information had been fed to Dole by forces that subsequently leaked Drug Enforcement Administration records that showed some basis for the charge—which was five years old.

Dole, as a spoiler and a trickster, is an albatross the Republican party is stuck with. Why President Gerald Ford chose him as his vice presidential candidate can be explained only by the threat of Ronald Reagan and his domination of the conservative wing of the party.

Since that unhappy campaign of a year ago I have talked with a wide range of men and women around the country about why Ford lost the election. Almost without exception they have given his choice of Dole as the pre-eminent reason. Both from the viewpoint of practical politics and the character of the man who would be one heartbeat from the presidency, it seemed an inept choice.

Throughout the campaign Dole seldom disappointed those within his own party who had viewed with dismay his selection by Ford at the Kansas City convention. He appeared as a tricky showoff with one-liners as his specialty.The impression was of a man who thought little of the office of vice president and less of the outcome of the election.

In his televised debate with Democratic vice presidential candidate Walter Mondale, Dole was nothing less than a disaster. However the uncommitted voter may have regarded Mondale, he was bound to look good against the Dole performance.

Looking back at that campaign—which now seems part of ancient history—and back at the two years that led up to it, the Ford errors are not hard to find. One was his cavalier treatment of Nelson Rockefeller whom he initially named vice president and then repudiated. Another was his sanction, again with the Reagan haunt hovering over his shoulder, of the repudiation of the Kissinger foreign policy in the foreign policy plank of the Republican platform.

As for the geographical reasons that so often figure in the choice of a vice president, Ford was bound in any event to carry Kansas. While he had foreclosed the choice of George Bush who would have been an important adjunct in Texas, other senators with more visible assets were ready and willing. Yet Dole was his choice.

That ratification of the treaties should become a political issue is in itself a sad commentary on the state of the political dialogue. Whatever the risks involved in turning control of the canal over eventually to the Panamanians, the dangers in rejecting the treaty are far greater.

It is no exaggeration to say that the relationship with Latin-America, none too happy at present, would deteriorate to zero. The exercise of American authority and American privilege in the Canal Zone is regarded as colonialism with all the stigma of the past.

Sabotage and subversive attack on the canal—with the demand for direct intervention of American forces—is a grim prospect that those using the cry of "give-away" choose to ignore.

Public financing's time is now

Jack Germond
Jules Witcover

Washington — At first blush, the House of Representatives' profile in courage — or craven surrender, depending on your point of view — on the cargo preference bill seems to be a triumph for the system.

Three years ago the House passed a bill that ultimately would have meant 30 percent of the oil imported into this country would have to be carried by American ships. The vote was 266 to 136 and, after the Senate went along, only a veto by Gerald Ford blocked the measure. But this time a similar bill that would have assured American shipping of a 9.5 percent share of oil imports has been soundly defeated in the House, 257 to 165, which suggests that a remarkable number of our legislators had a change of heart sometime in the last three years.

The difference, of course, is that this time the heavy political spending by the maritime unions and the shipbuilding industry were brought into sharp focus. We all discovered that President Carter's primary campaign last year had been given at least $100,000 from this industry-labor coalition, and that Carter had responded with what he later considered a commitment to cargo preference. And then Common Cause rooted through all the records to confirm that 215 members of the House had received $449,000 in contributions from the same interests.

Moreover, memoranda that leaked out of the White House made it clear that Carter was backing the cargo preference bill largely because of that political commitment, and despite the counsel of most of his advisers. Those memoranda quickly became a centerpiece of a partisan Republican attack on cargo preference.

Thus, when the bill reached the House floor, it was given the most perfunctory support by the administration, and a great many members concluded that it would be too expensive politically to go along again, whatever they had been given by the maritime industry.

The result of all this is a temptation in the wake of the House vote to develop a nice warm glow and preachify about how the episode illustrates the wisdom and effectiveness of The American Way. The campaign disclosure laws played their role in revealing the relationship between politicians and a special interest; the press fearlessly played its role in bringing that connection to public attention; the loyal opposition played its role in preventing an abuse by the majority. Just like in the civics books. Dandy.

But the fact is that almost the reverse is true. What we have learned from the cargo preference bill is (1) that there are all sorts of opportunities for abuse in our system of financing politicians, and (2) that it is only when the arrangement is so outrageously blatant that we are able to do anything about it. As Fred Wertheimer, the Common Cause lobbyist put it: "This is the exception, not the rule."

The truth is that there are dozens of cases every year in which financial contributions play a role in legislative decisions, even if only in coloring the attitude of senators and congressmen and, for that matter, presidents about issues. But in most cases, the process is, to use Wertheimer's phrase, "too subtle" for the press or Common Cause or the political opposition to identify and disclose.

Who knows what relationship may lie behind any individual contribution to a politician? Who knows, for example, just how a member of the conference committee on energy meeting now may be influenced on a specific amendment by a check from a friend who owns a lot of oil stock or by the contributions he has received from a consumer-oriented labor union?

So the cargo preference case is primarily a lesson, and that lesson is that unless we liberate politicians from private contributions — as much as some of them may resist — we are going to be vulnerable to the crudest possible abuses. And only once in a while, as with the cargo preference case, are we going to find out about it soon enough so that the abuse is prevented.

The lesson is at least timely, however. Although public financing of congressional elections was stifled in the Senate earlier this year, the plan is still alive in the House. Indeed, the committee will begin working on the bill early next week. And the experience with cargo preference should be persuasive evidence that financial disclosure is not enough. The message is that public financing is an idea whose time has come.

Is Connally Goldwater's choice?

Marianne Means

Washington — Sen. Barry Goldwater hints heavily that his first choice for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination is former Secretary of Treasury John Connally.

Goldwater said recently he thinks Connally would have "a fair chance" of beating President Carter. "I can't think of anybody else who could," he added.

The 1964 presidential nominee's support could help to shore up Connally's bid to replace Ronald Reagan as the hero of the GOP right wing. Goldwater, once the right wing's favorite himself, said he wasn't bothered by the fact Connally was a Democrat until a few years ago. "That doesn't make a bit of difference to me; I wish more Democrats would come over," he said.

Goldwater dismissed both Reagan and former President Gerald Ford as "too old" for the 1980 contest. He doesn't feel Sen. Howard Baker can pull it off and believes Sen. Robert Dole was hurt too badly by his weak 1976 vice presidential performance. He likes Illinois Gov. James Thompson and former United Nations Ambassador George Bush, but doubts either will work hard enough to get the nomination.

Pat Williams, a Democratic candidate for Congress next year in Montana, received a contribution from Clark Clifford, former secretary of defense and advisor to four Democratic presidents. Williams' senior advisors were so pleased at this evidence of Democratic establishment support they urged Williams to spread the word in Montana that Clifford was in his corner. After sounding out local reaction, however, Williams decided to keep quiet about Clifford. "All anybody in Montana knows about him is that he was Lance's lawyer, and they don't like that," he explained. So much for fame.

House of Representatives beauticians will finally get equal pay with the House barbers. After a 3-year campaign by congresswomen on behalf of their hairdressers, the House Administration Committee voted to treat the 19 women who work in the beauty shop the same way the 11 male barbers are treated.

Currently the barbers, who work out of four shops, receive both their barbering fees and a federal salary so that they qualify for retirement, health care, vacations and other benefits available to all other House staff members. The women, however, have been denied salaries and thus the security of the federal employee benefits. They have been required to provide their own curlers, brushes and other equipment.

Secretary of Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal, who grew up in Shanghai, observed recently he may be the only person around the White House who understands the tax reform program. "But then I'm the only one in the Cabinet who can read Chinese," he added wryly.

Ag chemicals boost production

Today's Mail

Farmer responds

Utica, Neb.

Advice to Len Schropfer:

In your letter to the Oct. 19th issue of The Star, you imply that raising chickens might be the answer to the farmers' problems. Yet memory tells us we had low prices and bugs and weeds during the time we raised chickens just as we do now. But now we don't lose money on the chickens and we don't have to shovel that manure.

You also state we should stamp "Chemical Dollars" on our checks. Before all the "terrible" chemicals came along we raised about 1/3 of what we raise now. I, as a farmer, would be happy to do without all chemical fertilizers, pesticides, and insecticides. But I, as a consumer, realize 2/3 of the people now fed by this country would go hungry and prices of food would be unbelievably high.

Also, as a farmer, I remember one of the old rules. Money is like manure, neither one is any good unless spread around. I also realize what you are expounding is not money. Now I just have to find a way to get this spread on our fields.

Finally, as a farmer and husband, I am proud of my wife and the WIFE organization. We not only ask our wives to shovel the manure and feed the chickens, we ask them to drive trucks, tractors, run our errands, treat and handle livestock, irrigate, do the bookwork and a million other things. They do this with no thanks, of course, and then still have time to form and operate one of the most effective agricultural organizations to come on the scene yet.

DENNIS RICHTERS

Race dates okay

Lincoln, Neb.

Star sports reporter Mark Gordon's support and promotion of Lincoln's race track and Henry Brandt with articles supporting Brandt's position is unequaled in this state. It would be nice if his support for the racing patron and the other Nebraska racing facilities was as biased.

Gordon will occasionally write an article concerning Nebraska horse racing that takes the racing patrons' side. However, apparently Mr. Gordon does not realize or respect the fact that it was the working class which supported the Lincoln oval in the years past without a five million dollar grandstand.

The farmer, railroader, rubber worker, Cushman employe and others who supported the Lincoln track through the lean years were rewarded with the worst betting facilities of any racetrack I have visited in North America by having the general admission seats cut at least in half, by increased admission price, by ninety cent cups of beer and the uphill climb to the "cheap" seats. The more affluent of course were given elevators, an enclosed area, air conditioning and more readily accessible betting facilities.

The racing dates given Lincoln in 1978 serve its interests as best can be while serving the interests of the other Nebraska racing facilities as well.

I believe the Nebraska State Racing Commission did a commendable job in assigning the 1978 racing dates and were fair with all concerned.

Irving's art studio

Lincoln, Neb.

Several weeks ago I had the opportunity to visit the newly remodeled art room at Irving Junior High School. Congratulations to Roger Van Deventer, Lincoln Public Schools Art Consultant and the coordinator of the project with assistance from Bob Falof, Ken Gaskin, Daryell Lightner, George Sedlacek, Cathy Harrington, Dick Hahn, Maryanne Hoemann, Karen Mahoney and Donna Culver and other support staff.

They have created a remarkable studio art facility, which I am confident students, teachers and parents will enjoy for many years.

Four Iowans killed in Blair plane crash

Blair (AP) — Four of five members of a Clarion, Iowa, family were killed Sunday in the crash of a private plane in a farm field owned by a man whose parents were killed in a similar crash five years ago.

A student on a school bus spotted the wreckage about 8:30 Monday morning, the Washington County sheriff's office said.

"I didn't want to use the C.B. radio on the bus, because other buses would hear about it and maybe rumors would get started," bus driver Gene Dollen, a Dana College student, explained later. "We were all looking out the window trying to spot it," he said.

The plane apparently crashed Sunday afternoon in a bean field owned by Kent Kuhr, who said his parents died in a plane crash Feb. 25, 1972, while en route from Ainsworth to Fremont.

Killed were Clarion mortician Rodney Moller, 41; his wife, Bonnie, 42, and two of their three children, Tracy, 16, and Shannon, 12. The family was en route home after visiting relatives in Blair when their plane went down six miles northwest of here, authorities said Monday.

Another daughter, Kim, 21, was home when the plane crashed, relatives said.

Farmers in the area said they heard a plane "having trouble with a sputtering motor" Sunday afternoon. Visibility was less than a half-mile at the time, a witness said.

No one saw or heard the plane crash and it was not until the plane failed to arrive in Clarion that a search was begun, authorities said.

The Blair airport has no control tower. The plane, a single' engine Piper Cherokee, crashed about two miles north of the small runway.

The plane disappeared from a radar screen Sunday afternoon, but one official said authorities first thought the pilot may have landed at another airport because of the poor weather.

Judge refuses to aid Marine wanted in Okinawa

Omaha (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Albert Schatz Monday refused to grant a temporary restraining order to prevent the United States from returning a Nebraska Marine to Okinawa for prosecution by the Japanese on a marijuana smuggling indictment.

Pfc. Richard Lynn Wilson of Auburn was scheduled to be returned to Okinawa Tuesday, although his attorney said Wilson's return may be delayed one day.

Neil Danberg said he had been informed the White House legal staff was considering a plea by Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., to President Carter to stop the U.S. from returning Wilson to Okinawa.

Wilson is accused to attempting to bring 700 grams of marijuana through the mails to Okinawa.

Schatz said there was nothing to indicate Wilson would not receive due process and a fair trial from the Japanese.

Wilson was in Japan at the time of the alleged offense and under treaty terms should be returned to face trial, jSchatz said.

Wilson's attorneys said he was indicted by the Japanese government following an investigation by agents of the U.S. Navy's investigative service.

The Japanese, Wilson's attorneys said, interrogated Wilson on "numerous occasions for lengthy periods of time" without the benefit of "American or Japanese counsel and in complete disregard" for his constitutional rights.

In arguments Friday before Schatz, U.S. attorney Thomas Tahlken said the United States had a "solemn obligation" under international treaty provisions to return Wilson to the Japanese for prosecution.

"Even a minimum delay could give rise to a serious breach of international law between Japan and the United States," Thalken said.

Last Sept. 7, Wilson allegedly forged travel papers and returned to Auburn. He later surrendered at the Marine Corps base at Camp Le Jeune, N.C., where he remains.

Wilson's attorneys said Monday they wanted to talk with their client before deciding whether to appeal the decision by Schatz.

Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson. The elder Wilson is executive vice president of the Auburn State Bank.

Lincoln's Birchers label U.N. Day 'day of shame'

The 28-member Lincoln chapter of the John Birch Society Monday branded United Nations Day as a "day of shame."

Instead of celebrating U.N. Day Monday, chapter leader Roger Bowker said, Americans should be urging U.S. withdrawal from the organization.

"Throughout its entire history, the U.N. has not only ignored violations of human rights, but has actually supported these violations through its support of communist tyranny," Bowker said.

The U.N. has "never condemned the Soviet military presence in Cuba or eastern Europe," he said.

Nor has it condemned "the slave labor camps behind the Iron or Bamboo Curtains" or "the massacre of innocent victims by communists in Africa or Asia.

"Instead, the U.N. constantly criticizes anti-communist countries, such as its resolution denouncing our bases in Guam, which is American territory."

Bowker said the Birch Society chapter in Lincoln is an active "educational" unit.

A chapter meeting is held monthly, and a separate "information-action meeting" is also held once a month.

Monday night's information-action session included a film strip dealing with the Panama Canal.

In addition to its human rights criticism of the United Nations, the Birch chapter expressed these concerns:

—The largest percentage of the U.N. budget is paid by the U.S., which "the Soviet Union and other communist countries are in arrears on their payments."

—While the U.S. has a single vote in the General Assembly, "the Soviet Union has been given three (U.S.S.R., Byelorussia and the Ukraine)."

—Diplomats assigned to the U.N. are "able to use their immunity from arrest for communist espionage activities in this country."

—The U.N. is "shielding the massive distribution of narcotics by one of its newest members, Red China."

—The U.N. provides "the formal framework for world government" which would abandon freedom and abolish the United States of America.

33 women resign Omaha commission

Omaha (UPI) — Mayor Al Veys was left without a Commission on the Status of Women Monday after 33 members resigned and the remaining three members asked that their appintments be withdrawn.

The three women who asked that their appointments be withdrawn were appointed by Veys. They were Mary Ann Nipp, Jane Smith and Joan Patterson, whose appointment as chairman sparked the controversy which led to the mass resignation.

Veys said the withdrawal of the other members of the commission would "assist me in my decision concerning the reconstruction of the commission," but refused to elaborate on his plans.

"I am going to think a while and not make a decision at this time. I want to see. I'd like to know how much it has been costing," Veys said.

Veys asked the city finance department to provide him with figures on the amount of money spent by the commission.

Several members of the commission voiced strong objections when Veys appointed Mrs. Patterson, an opponent of the Equal Rights Amendment, as chairman. The commission was on record in support of the ERA.

The 33 women who resigned said in a joint statement they were not "quitting" but will "be seeking a more supportive umbrella organization under which we can operate."

Veys recently told the commission that it must clear all stands on issues with him and cannot act independently of him.

"As a body we cannot bow to a dictatorial mayor who insists on ultimate parental control of the Commission on the Status of Women," the resigning members said.

Fairbury man dies in wreck

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — A 19-year-old Fairbury man, John Hiller, was killed about midnight Sunday when his pickup truck left the highway 6½ miles west of Fairbury.

Jefferson County Sheriff Clyde Kellie said the victim, alone and eastbound on U.S. 136, apparently went to sleep and drove off the road. He died instantly when the truck's gas tank exploded and burned the vehicle.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hiller of Fairbury; brother, Larry of North Platte; sister, Mrs. Vern Gaston of Gilead, and grandmother, Mrs. Josephine Hiller of Hebron.

Funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Hebron's Sacred Heart Catholic Church. Burial will be at Hebron.

Valentine boy's shooting death under scrutiny

Valentine (UPI) — An investigation continued Monday into the shooting death of a 3-year-old Valentine boy, Cherry County Attorney Bill Quigley said.

He said Ray James Laleff was shot once in the chest with a .357-magnum handgun Friday. There was no evidence to indicate foul play, although information about the shooting was sketchy, he said.

The boy apparently was playing with the gun in the yard of his home, Quigley said. Residents of the area told police they heard a shot and found the boy's body when they came to investigate. The gun was lying nearby and no one else was seen in the vicinity, Quigley said.

He said the gun belonged to a neighbor, but it was uncertain how the boy got the gun.

The victim was the son of Doris Laleff of Valentine.

Funeral services were scheduled Tuesday.

UP says switching yard would be unacceptable

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

Objections by the Union Pacific Railroad to a proposed switching yard near Wilderness Park may delay progress on Lincoln's demonstration track relocation project.

In a statement submitted to Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD) director Howard Gunnerson, the railroad cites several objections to the planned yard, to be shared by the Union Pacific and Rock Island lines, between Van Dorn and Pioneers Blvd. just east of the park.

The railroad officials said their concerns are "of sufficient weight to require a thorough revision" of the draft environmental impact statement on the project.

According to the statement, the Union Pacific considers the proposed yard "unworkable and unacceptable" because it would cause "interchange problems" between railroads and would create tie-ups on the main track through the corridor.

Union Pacific officials said they would prefer instead a yard location north of O St., with a branch line following an alternate route proposed by the South Salt Creek Community Organization.

The community organization has objected to the corridor's impact on the neighborhood lying between J and South Sts. along south 3rd St.

The alternate proposed by the neighborhood would route trains to the west, along Salt Creek.

RTSD response to the railroad's objections will come in November, when Gunnerson presents a "project concept" report to the RTSD board.

Federal approval of the completed environmental impact statement is expected in late February or March.

The board Monday directed Gunnerson to meet with County Engineer Marv Nuernberger and RTSD legal counsel Bob Crosby to work out a contract with Nuernberger for RTSD funding of railroad crossing improvements.

Nuernberger has asked for $37,273 for work already completed on several crossings. No contract was made between the county and the RTSD board before the work was done.

Former RTSD director John Longsdorf will be retained as a consultant on an "on-call" basis or 20 to 40 hours per month, the board voted Monday.

Fees for his services will be a maximum of $1,200 per month, as opposed to $3,200 per month full-time for the past three months.

Longsdorf is an employe of Jamel, Inc., an Omaha firm.

Tehran, Iran (AP) — Iran's crude oil exports increased in September by 135,105 barrels per day, the National Iranian Oil Co. has announced.

Money problems close La Raza

Grand Island (UPI) — The financially troubled La Raza Cultural Center in Grand Island closed officially Monday.

The center, which served area Mexican-Americans, has had difficulty obtaining funds to continue its operations.

A center spokesman, the Rev. Moses Cavasos, said two major factors entered into the decision to close.

"One of the reasons," he said, "was the center did not have a tax exemption number and it was virtually impossible to get corporations or any foundation to donate money."

Secondly, there are no funds available and a just completed survey showed the people want a new center with a new direction, he said.

He said all center assets will be liquidated and the money will be used to pay off the existing debt.

Within the next few weeks, Cavasos said, the center's board of directors will regroup and decide whether a new center could be built and which direction it will take.

Murder suspect Beers will take polygraph test

Nebraska City (AP) — Otoe County District Court Judge Raymond Case ruled Monday that Robert Beers should be permitted to take a polygraph test, as requested by defense attorney Richard Hoch during a hearing in District Court last Friday.

Hoch said the test may be administered at the State Patrol headquarters in Lincoln on thursday. The headquarters are across the street from the Nebraska Penal Complex where Beers is being held pending trial.

Beers is charged with first degree murder and shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim in a July 9 incident in which Nebraska City Police Officer Gary White was fatally shot and fellow officer Peter Rishel was shot and seriously wounded.

Case ordered that either Otoe County Sheriff Russell Seals or a deputy be available to escort Beers to and from the test site.

The judge also ordered the prosecution and defense to exchange reports from investigative personnel involving observations, but excluding opinions.

Funeral services held for airplane hijacker

Grand Island (UPI) — Funeral services were held Monday at Resurrection Catholic Church for Thomas Michael Hannan, 29, of Grand Island, who shot himself last Thursday after hijacking a Frontier Airlines plane here and forcing the pilot to fly it to Atlanta, Ga.

In committing suicide aboard the plane while it was on the ground at Atlanta, Hannan used the sawed-off shotgun he wielded while commandeering the plane at the Hall County Regional Airport.

About 30 relatives and close friends attended the funeral, which was private. Burial was in the Grand Island Cemetery.

Hannan was born in Sioux Falls, S.D., and moved with his family in 1951 to Mead, and in 1963 to Grand Island. He graduated from Central Catholic High School in 1966.

After military service in Vietnam, Hannan lived in various parts of the United States. He was free on bond on a bank robbery charge in Georgia at the time of the hijacking.

Fund drive nets $3,540

Ashland — "Rickie Styskal Day" in Ashland Saturday netted $3,540.88 toward Richie's operation Nov. 2 for cerebral palsy.

Lois Christ of Granny's Place in Ashland and a spokesman for the C.B.ers for C.P. Association of Nebraska in Lincoln said more money is on the way from pledges taken during the fund drive.

A private plane also has been donated to take Richie to Chicago for the $16,000 operation to implant a "cerebral stimulator."

Falling woodland worries forester

Elimination of 300,000 acres of natural woodland, almost one-third of the acreage identified 20 years ago, is pushing Nebraska closer to being the "tree removal state," a University of Nebraska-Lincoln forester said.

Joe Range, assistant state forester, said the Nebraska Forest Service, which became a part of the UNL Department of Forestries, Fisheries and Wildlife in July, plans to initiate an action and service program for anyone interested.

"The program will offer technical assistance for the planting and caring of trees," he said.

Range said tree losses are occuring for several major reasons:

—Irrigation development. He termed shelterbelt removal in the Great Plains as "one of the great concerns" of foresters and others interested in trees. Shelterbelts when first planted were intended to help control erosion, and tree removal has precipitated soil losses.

—Many trees have become uprooted around streams where there is a lot of vegetation and water has accumulated.

—Removal of trees along roadways to facilitate improvements and maintenance. Dialogue between citizens' groups and highway officials has resulted in the agreement to carefully study the question of cutting down trees, with the objective of removing nuisance or harmful trees but leaving others stand.

—Many trees have been lost through disease, especially American elms.

"Urban forestry has become very popular in recent years," Range said. There is growing interest among town and city residents in planting new trees and maintaining existing ones, he said.

Range said many greenbelts, such as Wilderness Park on the south edge of Lincoln, are being developed or planned around the state.

School addition proposed

Sidney (UPI) — Voters in the Sidney school district are scheduled to vote today on a $2.8 million school bond issue.

The funds, if approved will be used for an addition to the senior high school to house vocational education programs, a gymnasium and music rooms. Cost of the addition is estimated at $2 million.

Dr. Magiera dies

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services were held here Monday for Dr. Stephen Magiera, 57, who practiced internal medicine in Omaha for nearly 30 years.

Dr. Magiera was assistant professor of internal medicine at Creighton Medical School and the University of Nebraska College of Medicine. Surviving are his wife, Ann, two sons and four daughters.

School issue on ballot

Chapman (UPI) — Voters in school District No. 9 in Chapman will go to the polls today to decide the fate of a $115,000 bond issue.

Elsie Houdek, a Chapman school board member, said the 10-year bond, if passed, would finance construction of two classrooms and an addition to the north side of the existing gymnasium area. The three-story school was built in 1917 and accommodates 124 students in kindergarten through the eighth grade.

Murphy rites set

Omaha (AP) — Services are scheduled today in Omaha for Dr. Charles Murphy, 79, one of the first Nebraskans to use hypnosis instead of anesthesia.

In his practice, Dr. Murphy often used hypnosis for delivery of babies, to relieve pain in cancer patients and in smoking and obesity cases. Although retired from active practice, he was president of the Nebraska Society of Clinical Hypnosis.

Nicholson named

Washington — School board member Ivan Nicholson of Holdrege, Neb., School District 44 has been appointed to a special task force on education of handicapped children by the National School Boards Association. The study group is one of six set up by NSBA to explore major issues in education.

Family Day slated

Omaha — The General Crook House will be the scene of Family Day Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m., at Fort Omaha.

After the Strategic Air Command Band performs, Rep. John J. Cavanaugh, D-Neb., will be the main speaker at a brief ceremony unveiling an historical marker. The First Nebraska Regiment Veteran Volunteer Infantry, the Eastern Platte Muzzleloaders, and the First Nebraska Regiment Veteran Volunteer Cavalry, all in period dress, will do reenactments on the parade grounds.

Fredlund cited

Omaha — Robert Fredlund, student financial aids director for the University of Nebraska Medical Center, has been selected as the outstanding student financial aid administrator of the year by the Nebraska Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Fredlund also received the association's Bob Minturn Distinguished Service Award for 1977.

Inmate pleads guilty to stabbing charge

A Nebraska Penal Complex inmate awaiting trial on a charge of stabbing another inmate pleaded guilty to the charge in Lancaster County District Court Monday.

Alfonso (Joe) Moreno, of Sidney, entered the plea after plea bargaining and agreement by the county attorney's office to drop charges of being an habitual criminal. District Judge William Hastings ordered a presentence investigation.

Moreno allegedly stabbed inmate Ray Kenton in the penal complex exercise yard the evening of July 9 after Kenton had argued about a prison demonstration, earlier in the day, with another inmate.

The demonstration, in protest of the accidental electrocution death of inmate Shawn Sparks, lasted most of the afternoon of July 8, ending in the early morning July 9. Kenton said during a preliminary hearing that he had argued about the demonstration with an inmate from Scottsbluff, and that he didn't know Moreno at the time of the stabbing incident.

Moreno had been bound over to district court on Sept. 28 and was to have a trial during the current jury term, after pleading not guilty to the charges against him.

Suspects freed because victims can't be found

Robbery charges against two out-of-state men have been dropped because the alleged victims can't be found, according to the Lancaster County Attorney's office.

The charges against Artis Simpson, 41, of Des Moines, and Levi O'Neal, Jr., 37, of Chicago, were dropped when the victims, one from California and another from New York, couldn't be contacted to appear for a preliminary hearing. The prosecutors said the alleged victims were apparently transients.

O'Neal and Simpson allegedly robbed the pair of about $40 in a boxcar near 6th and O Sts. on Sept. 7, officials said.

Lincoln woman reports assault in parking lot

A Lincoln woman was reportedly assaulted Saturday night in the parking lot at Mr. B's grocery store, 70th and O Sts.

Beverly A. Hedlee, 32, of 5141 Wilshire, told police she had just pulled into the lot and was about to get out of her car when a man described as a white male in his late 30's to early 40's, began talking to her about a flat tire on his car.

He then tried to push her into her car seat, whereupon she resisted and he struck her in the face.

The victim said the man was about 5 feet 6 inches tall, of heavy build, with light colored hair and neatly dressed. He left in a large dark-colored car with unknown license numbers, police said.

Two men tell of assault by two youths with knives

Two men told police they were assaulted early Saturday morning as they were walking along N. 16th St. between S and U Sts. with two young women.

Jeff Hoff, 18, of 519 N. 16th St., and Terry Reichert, 20, of Scottsbluff, told police they were threatened at knifepoint by two youths who refused to let them pass on the sidewalk.

Police were holding a 17-year-old youth from Greely, Colo., and an 18-year old youth from Los Angeles, Calif. in connection with the incident.

Rural water districts form state association

Nebraska's 17 rural water districts formed a state association.

To date 12 districts have formally joined the association, according to Jack Schuetz of rural Lincoln.

"The purpose of the organization is to have workshops and training sessions for board members, staff and managers," Schuetz said.

The new organization elected seven directors, James Hunzeker, Humboldt; Jack Schuetz, Lincoln; Avery Jaspersen, West Point; Kenneth Zoeller, Reserve, Kan.; Clark Hunzeker, Pawnee City; Herman Minderman, Syracuse and one member will be elected later from Cass County.

James Hunzeker is president; Schuetz, vice president; Jaspersen, secretary-treasurer and William Davis of Nebraska City is general counsel.

'Farmer's dilemma' is Rogers' top concern

If he is elected, Republican gubernatorial candidate Vance Rogers said Monday, "solving the farmer's dilemma will be the top item on my list of concerns for Nebraska."

Upon his election, he said in a speech at Butte, "I intend to establish a non-partisan coalition comprising the governors of Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"Together, we can interpret to Washington, in no uncertain terms, the plight of the American farmer and the role of the Midwest as the breadbasket of the world."

Rogers said "the single most important problem facing all Nebraskans today is low prices on Nebraska's farm products."

And if that continues, he said, "Nebraska will be the home of another extinct species . . . the family farm."

Thone: Carter foils fraud-fighting bill

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., has charged the Carter administration with thwarting a bill that would establish fraud-fighting units in 12 large federal agencies.

The bill was approved unanimously by the House Government Operations Committee, on which he serves.

"After the bill was yanked from the calendar just before it was to be considered by the whole House," Thone said, "word circulated through the cloakrooms the White House opposed the bill."

Thone said the bill establishes inspectors general who would conduct internal audits and investigate "suspicions of fraud or other criminal activity" within each of the 12 agencies.

Thone noted that in its last session, Congress approved a bill to provide such an investigative unit within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), which, Thone says, is "the largest spending entity in the federal governments."

Comment on school income tax invited

Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams invited the public to discuss with him his proposed income tax for school support at a legislative hearing in Beatrice Thursday.

The Revenue Committee hearing is scheduled for the city auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Burrows' bill to replace property tax support for the schools with a local income tax is scheduled for floor action by the 1978 Unicameral.

"This bill will revolutionize the existing methods of supporting schools across the state," Burrows said.

"It also contains provisions for a corporate and non-resident income tax fund which will tend to equalize tax rates among school districts."

The committee, chaired by Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield, will also hold public hearings in Scottsbluff, North Platte and Grand Island this week.

Veys raps campaign in Sioux City

Omaha (UPI) — Mayor Al Veys said Monday he was concerned over the way Omaha's name was being used in an advertisement in Sioux City, but now was not the time to approach officials there on the matter.

Veys said some Sioux City radio and television ads have said "if you go to downtown Sioux Falls or downtown Omaha, you won't see anyone there." The ads warned Sioux City residents about the alleged consequences of a proposed urban shopping center.

Veys said he had planned to visit Sioux City Monday, but he since learned Sioux City was in the middle of the city election campaign and wrote Mayor William Gross canceling his visit.

"I do not wish to become involved in your city's political situation," Veys wrote Gross.

Production to end

Jay, Maine (AP) — International Paper Co. reported it will cease production of electrostatic base stock paper at its Otis Mill here and withdraw from that market at the end of the year.

Wheat growers in Nebraska to get payments

Omaha (AP) — An estimated $85 million worth of government deficiency payments will be made to Nebraska wheat producers, says a spokesman for the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

Edward Harshbarger said most of the $400 million in payments on the 1977 wheat crop will go to growers in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

About $200 million will be paid in Kansas, between $85 million and $90 million in Oklahoma and the remainder will go to growers in Colorado and western Missouri.

Payments should begin by mid-November and probably will be completed by the end of the year, Harshberger said.

Road funds to be stretched across state

Norfolk (AP) — Inflation and high costs will affect construction plans of the Pan-American Highway Association, according to state and federal highway experts who addressed the association as their 44th annual meeting got underway Monday.

The association supports the construction of a four lane, north-south highway along the U.S. 81 corridor from Canada to Mexico. Such a highway now exists except for the stretch from Salina, Kan. to Watertown, S.D.

"Nebraska is working to make it's segment of the Pan-American Highway a safer and better road capable of meeting present and future traffic demands," said Dave Coolidge, state engineer of the Nebraska department of roads.

The state has about $7.7 million just completed on U.S. 81, he said, adding that plans call for the state to invest $26 million and improve 84 miles of highway by the end of fiscal 1983 if funds are available.

Some of the problems facing the program are that they cannot predict what federal funding will be, that inflation will continue and that materials and labor costs will rise, eroding the purchasing power of the highway dollar.

"If minflation continues, we will have to stretch out our planned programs from five years to possibly eight or ten," Coolidge said.

Some other problems Coolidge cited were dwindling revenues and the possibility of gas rationing, but he said that there are always problems in the highway industry but adding, "I'm optimistic."

The group also heard from R.H. Hogrefe, division administrator with the U.S. Department of Transportation. He said his department does not know what will be included in the new highway department legislation in the way of revenue.

"From the federal standpoint, three of our major problems are funding, energy and inflation. In a nutshell, our funding problem is we can only build about half as many roads today as we could in 1967 with a given amount of dollars".

"We'll have one fourth of the highway construction program by 1985 that we had in 1965," Hogrefe said.

He said the increase in the cost of maintenance and administration means that although the dollar figure of monies allotted to highway expenditures would steadily increase, the actual amount used for construction will decrease.

Hogrefe said roads, streets and highway expendures in 1965 were $14 billion, and were increased to $27 billion by 1975; expenditures by 1985 will be $37 billion but maintenance and administration by the states will demand $28 billion of the $37 billion by 1985.

"In real construction terms its going down hill," he said.

The group elected Merle Miller, Bellville, Kans., president. He succeeds Hollis Francis of Norfolk.

Hastings council OKs electric rate ordinance

Hastings (AP) — The City Council here has adopted an electric rate ordinance to pay for a 70-megawatt coal fired power plant.

The ordinance includes a projected rate structure that calls for a 12 per cent increase in the basic electric rate beginning Jan. 1, 1978.

It alr3$8fb0ides for a resolution of intent to raise the basic rate 12 per cent each year through 1981. This does not include periodic adjustments in the cost of fuel, a spokesman said.

City officials hope the first $35 million in electricity revenue bonds will be on the market for sale by early December. A total of $70 million has been authorized for the plant construction.

Ground breaking is expected in mid-December if environmental permits are granted by the state Department of Environmental control.

Death penalty order challenged

United Press International

A move has been made to block a Nebraska Supreme Court order that Erwin Charles simants be put to death in the electric chair next Jan. 21.

Defense attorney Leonard Vynalek of North Platte said an application for a rehearing of Simants' case has been sent to the U.S. Supreme Court, arguing that Nebraska's death penalty statute is unconstitutional.

Vynalek has been assisting Lincoln County Public Defender Keith Bystrom with the case.

Simants was found guilty of murdering six members of the Henry Kellie family at Sutherland.

Agency doesn't need auditing, Albert says

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas\ County Commissioner Mike Albert said Monday 12 audits of the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency have been completed in the past year, and there is no need for more.

Commissioner Richard Fellman has prepared a resolution asking for a financial audit of the agency and performance audits of the alcoholism, aging, retardation and mental health programs.

Albert contended the audits Fellman has requested would be identical to the ones already completed.

"Should taxpayers spend money to audit an agency that has just finished its 12th audit (at taxpayers' expense) in 12 months? No more than you would allow a doctor to take your appendix out twice in one week," Albert said.

The audits suggested by Fellman might cost as much as $50,000, Albert said.

Free workshops set on housing problems

The Family Service Association will sponsor a day of free workshops on housing and apartment problems beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday at Lincoln High School.

Among topics to be discussed by the 22 speakers on the agenda are how to evaluate and finance a home, selecting a good cheap apartment and maintaining home appliances.

Workshops will also be offered in reducing utility costs, choosing property insurance and making household purchases.

Free child care for children, 2 to 12, will be provided. Reservations may be made by calling the Lincoln-Lancaster Child Care System Administration office.

Fashion followers lured by ready-to-wear week

By Bernadine Morris
(c) New York Times

Paris — The fashion people converged on the City of Light this past weekend from all over the world.

They flew in from Japan, the Philippines, Australia and South Africa.

They drove up from the provinces after they closed their shops Saturday night.

They took trains from West Germany and the Benelux countries and those who had seen the preliminaries, the first spring collections, came up from Italy.

The lure is the Super Bowl of fashion, French ready-to-wear week, and the celebrants combine a sort of religious fervor with the passion of sports enthusiasts. The search is for a new idea or a new look, and to find the grail they will comb the shops, storm the shows and prowl the Porte de Versailles, where some display their wares.

The season is spring and so far the great revelation that will change the clothes people wear has not been unveiled, but there are plenty of clues. They point to a modification of current trends rather than a brand new direction and to serious observers this is fine. But the proceedings are always marked by more than a little madness.

This time there are more serious undertones as martial music, black leather clothes and chains as fashion accessories create a creepy atmosphere at a few of the shows. What with demonstrators in the streets, reportedly in sympathy with the German terrorists and hijackers, observers who came here to see the fashions were wearing echoes of the Nazi era. Others felt it was simply a display of sado-masochism.

Tempers were frayed by the difficulties of getting into the shows as thousands of would-be viewers were kept waiting in the street while their credentials were checked.

"Check them inside, it's raining," the mob yelled during a downpour at the Pavillon d'Armenonville in the Bois de Boulogne where the Bastelbajac show was being held. And then they stormed the barricades. Going to the shows can be a training ground for revolutionaries.

There has been surprisingly little rancor. Once inside the doors, the observers are perfectly willing to cheer the creators of beautiful clothes. Thus Thiery Mugler, Claude Montana and Pablo and Delia zere hailed as up-and-coming members of the younger generation of ready-to-wear designers here, despite the penchant of the first two for the distrubing leather gear.

Soon, they swing into the big shapes in linen and muslin that are all the rage. Even at the Port de Versailles where fashion people view each other as well as the clothes on display, skinny pants tucked into boots are worn by the strictly second team. Sweatshirts or blouse tops are pulled over voluminous skirts by those who know where fashion is going.

Issey Miyake who, along with Kenzo, is the best known of a number of Japanese designers working here, was an instigator of the big look in past seasons. His bat-winged tops, ballooning pants and loose gauzy dresses, sometimes in two layers, today have a manageable look.

His play clothes include boxing trunks and rompers and his swimsuits, always one piece, are cut high on the thighs.

Special effects are an important part of the scene.

The effects were suggestive of "Star Wars" in the Castelbajac show.

A rather spooky sound track with bleeps and twangs and a voice monotonously repeating "It's so strange" didn't conceal the fact that the designer makes clean-cut sports clothes. His snug-fitting one-piece swimsuits — the bikini is obviously passe — have zippers at the midriff.

Ungaro concentrated on pretty flowered clothes, very soft and summery. Nothing sinister here. Everything was big and billowy and dresses tended to stop at the knees. Sometimes a sash was tied around the hips and the top bloused over so the skirt was drawn up above the knees.

Most of the trousers were variations on the dwoti, the Indian diaper-like garment that wraps between the legs.

Sonia Rykiel sent out her first models in silence, which was news in itself. That was to make sure nobody missed the kneepants and the fringe. The fringe appeared on the chest of the matching sweater jackets and on the pockets and belts. It was one of the marks of here collection. Another was the appearance of hot colors: The primary shades plus jade green. Rykiel is noted for her neutrals.

New bank concerned about 'women's problems'

Washington (AP) — The first federally chartered bank run by women for women will open this winter.

Located in the heart of downtown Washington, the bank will compete with some of the largest financial institutions in the city.

But the Womens National Bank, as it will be known, hopes to make inroads by offering "personalized service" with special sensitivity to the financial and credit needs of women and small-business owners.

Although the bank says it will be directed to women's banking needs, deposits from men also will be sought. The organizers also note that six of 15 directors are men and that the bank staff will include men.

The bank will be the first national bank of its kind. State-chartered women's banks, however, are in operation in San Francisco, San Diego, Richmond, New York and Greenwich, Conn.

The comptroller also has granted preliminary approval for a women's bank in Denver, but it is not expected to open before the bank here.

Emily Womach, a former Delaware treasurer with 27 years' banking experience, is president and head of the board of directors. Meredith M. Homet, a public relations consultant, will be second in command.

Although the bank says it will be extra sensitive to the financial problems of women, it will pay no attention to race or sex in hiring or business practices, says Ms. Homet.

"If we limited ourselves, we would be discriminating," she said.

The bank already has collected $3 million in pledges from about 1,000 individuals and organizations. And it has begun a $2 million stock offering to raise additional funds.

Completion of the stock sale will determine the exact date the bank opens. Ms. Homet said she expects that to come in late December.

The first application, filed in December 1975, was rejected because of little banking experience by many proposed board members and insufficient data on the need for a women's bank. But new board members with more banking experience were recruited, the special credit problem women face were better documented and support was obtained from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who chair the Senate and House Banking committees.

With help from these and others, the application was quickly reconsidered. The comptroller's office even offered two staff members to help get the application in order.

The major problems now confronting the Women's Bank are the same as those of any other new bank — selling stock and acquiring deposits.

Ms. Homet said the bank will solicit some accounts by asking prospective corporate depositors to open accounts based upon the percentage of women in their work force or among their customers.

But she added that the bank still intends to sell itself through the services provided for smaller depositors.

"I think we can offer a new dimension in banking because of our attitude to all our depositors," Ms. Womach said. "People want to be recognized and they want to be served in a friendly and personalized fashion. We can do this on an individual basis."

Among the bank's selling points will be assigning a banker to each customer to consult in person or by telephone.

The bank also plans "brown bag seminars" at lunch time where speakers will make presentations on topics like financial planning and management, investments, wills, budgets and business financing.

This is a car that is really fit for a sheik

Philadelphia (AP) — A chic sheik from the United Arab Emirates has picked up a new plaything to dazzle his oil field pals.

It's a customized 1974 Cadillac with 24-carat gold bumpers, grille, wire wheel discs, ashtrays, door handles, window buttons and rear-view mirror.

The cream-colored limousine has crushed velvet upholstery, deep-pile carpeting, a color television set, a radio, a movie screen, a tape player, a refrigerator, a bar and a pull-out wooden chess board.

The $60,000 "resort on wheels" was purchased by Alto International, a worldwide trading firm based here, for an unidentified sheik from the United Arab Emirates.

Magd Abdel-Kader, who negotiated the purchase, declined to name the customer, but said the sheik has "hundreds" of Cadillacs.

"He likes to work on them."

Friedman—steel industry shelter is unnecessary

Pittsburgh (AP) — Nobel prize-winning economist Milton Friedman, an advocate of free trade, says there is no good reason to protect the nation's troubled steel industry from cheap imports.

Friedman, recently retired from the University of Chicago, says import restrictions would raise consumer costs without raising employment in the United States.

Snyder senior stat champion

By Randy York
Prep Sports Editor

He hardly belongs in the same class as J. K. McKay or Bobby Thomas, but Snyder High School fans this week are mentioning their own Jim Smeal in the same sentence with those two national prep football record-holders.

Smeal, 5-4, 140 and one of two seniors on Snyder's winless eight-man football team, caught 25 passes for 348 yards and scored three touchdowns last weekend . . . and his team lost, 72-27, to unbeaten Beemer!

"I know it sounds unreal. It took us all by surprise, but we checked our stats against Beemer and we're convinced they're accurate," Snyder coach Tom McConnell says.

The remarkable performance, even in a lopsided cause, sent area football enthusiasts scurrying for the record books.

If Smeal's statistics would be accepted — which is doubtful since neither team could afford to film the game — then the Snyder senior would be given credit for breaking two national prep records.

Thomas, the former Nebraska split end from King of Prussia, Pa., shares the single game 22-catch national record with Frank Mobley of Madison, Fla.

McKay, the LaPuente, Calif., prep all-American who played for his father at Southern Cal, holds the national reception yardage record with 323.

Smeal's effort probably will go down as a meritorious performance rather than a record. Since he doesn't have the credentials for even all-state recognition, McConnell isn't complaining.

"Jim only had 19 catches for 272 yards before we played Beemer," McConnell acknowledges. "But that hasn't been his problem. We play mostly freshmen and sophomores. If he'd played on most any other team this year, he'd be a real good one. He's sort of been stuck here."

McConnell admits "we were looking to get whomped by Beemer and we did. But Jim is a tough little kid. He didn't set out for any record, but he stuck his head in there and worked hard for his accomplishment."

Mostly, the yards resulted from short passes where "Jim literally just ran over people. He runs a :10.5 hundred and gives everything that's in him," McConnell says.

Although most of Smeal's yardage was achieved against Beemer's first team defense, McConnell allows that "he did get some of it when Beemer had substitutes in there."

While Smeal was catching more footballs than most receivers catch in warmups, Snyder quarterback Dale Kreikemeier was throwing 64 passes.

Kreikemeier, a 5-7 sophomore who passed for 1,296 yards behind a more experienced varsity line last year, completed 34 of them for 407 yards and four touchdowns against Beemer.

That performance didn't even come close to a national prep record comparison. Dwain Frazier of Elmore High in Houston, Tex., once passed for 588 yards for that honor.

Nets' Averitt gets court date

Buffalo, N.Y. (UPI) — New Jersey Nets guard William "Bird" Averitt has been ordered to appear in suburban Amherst town court Nov. 2 to answer charges of issuing a fraudulent check and allegedly violating the town's pet laws.

Police said Averitt, 25, who played for the Buffalo Braves last season, was arrested last Saturday following a Braves-Nets NBA game in Buffalo. He was released on $700 bail, which was posted by Nets public relations director Ted Pase, police said.

Police said Averitt was accused of allegedly issuing a fraudulent check for $373.08 to a suburban Williamsville Restaurant last April. Police said Averitt was also accused of allowing his unlicensed German shepherd dog to run loose last winter when he lived in Amherst.

Police said Averitt allegedly failed to answer summonses involving the dog and the town dog warden had issued a bench warrant for Averitt on the matter.

Osborne, NU fans receive good news

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

Good news flowed as hot and heavy as the coffee being poured during Monday's Extra Point Club luncheon.

Some of the items which had the overflow crowd at the Cornhusker Hotel happily applauding and Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne beaming included:

— Colorado linebacker Tom Perry, who suffered a serious head injury against Nebraska last Saturday, was much improved.

— This week's Nebraska-Oklahoma State game in Stillwater will be regionally televised by ABC-TV with kickoff at 12:50 p.m.

— Nebraska's football team and its Big Eight title hopes, are alive and well after the Cornhuskers' 33-15 win over the Golden Buffaloes.

Following cheers when the television announcement was made, Osborne almost brought the house down with the news that Colorado's Perry is apparently on the road to recovery.

"I spoke to Mrs. Mallory (CU Coach Bill Mallory's wife) and Tom's wife, Connie, this morning (Monday) on the phone," Osborne said in reference to the Buff linebacker who was rushed to Omaha for brain surgery after collapsing in the dressing room following Saturday's game.

"They seemed very optimistic about Tom's chances of complete recovery. Our players and coaches have shown more concern over this thing than anything in a long time. So we are all very happy and relieved."

ABC-TV spokesman Donn Bernstein said via a telephone conversation from his New York City office Monday, that while the telecast would be a regional broadcast, it will be the netwo ''s "primary broadcast this weekend. App timately 60 per cent of the naiton will se .e game."

Bernstein said ABC's No. 1 broadcasting crew of Keith Jackson and Frank Broyles would handle the play-by-play and color respectively for the Big Eight battle. The game will be the second of three telecasts this season for Nebraska. They were on the tube against Alabama and will be seen nationally against Oklahoma Nov. 25.

"We think the Nebraska-Oklahoma State game is a hell of a hookup," Bernstein said. "It should be a great football game."

Nebraska's Osborne noted the game with the Cowboys "is always tough.

"I've been around Nebraska since 1962 and have never had an easy time with Oklahoma State. And since I've been head coach we've had a tie and the rest were decided by a touchdown or less."

Reflecting on the win over Colorado, Osborne said, "that was about as good a football game as we've played all year both offensively and defensively.

"Our running game was excellent and it was as sound a defensive effort as we've had this year. In the Iowa State game it seemed like we had someone on defense making a mistake on almost every play. But there were few mistakes this week."

Osborne admitted he is still concerned with the Nebraska passing game which completed five of 21 tosses with two intercepted.

"I think it's (passing attack) a combination of not throwing the ball well and not catching it well," Osborne said. "In the past, we have been known as a team that threw more than we ran. Now, the pendulum seems to have swung the other way."

The fifth-year Husker head coach said he was also concerned with the kicking game. He recalled Colorado's 98-yard kickoff return and Nebraska's problems getting 11 men on the field for two extra point attempts.

"For years coaches have had trouble counting past 10," joked Osborne, in reference to Nebraska having 12 players on the field for one extra point.

In the injury department, Osborne said fullback Monte Anthony suffered an apparent concussion against Colorado, while linebacker James Wightman reinjured a knee.

He said both players are questionable for OSU and its Heisman Trophy candidate, running back Terry Miller.

"Miller is as good a running back as there is in the country," Osborne said. "He has a good combination of speed and elusiveness. You can bottle him up for three quarters and then all of a sudden he will break one and will go all the way."

NBA attacking game violence

New York (AP) — "There is no place in our sport for violence," said Larry O'Brien, commissioner of the National Basketball Association. "Conduct of this nature will not be tolerated and will be punished accordingly."

That was the message sent by O'Brien to NBA players, coaches, executives and fans following Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's one-punch knockout of Kent Benson last week.

If players want to fight, said O'Brien, it would cost them dearly. And if the fans want to watch a fight, don't go to a professional basketball game.

"Every player in the NBA is on notice that I oppose fighting during games, no matter what the provocation," said O'Brien.

"I will use all the powers of my office to prevent violence within the NBA."

O'Brien acted swiftly in levying a $5,000 fine — the largest in league history — against Abdul-Jabbar, the Los Angeles Lakers' superstar center. And he said the only reason the fine was not accompanied by a suspension was that Abdul-Jabbar had suffered a broken hand during the fight, meaning he would be sidelined for possibly a month.

O'Brien was empowered by the league's Board of Governors last season to issue fines up to $10,000, plus suspensions, to anyone involved in fights during NBA games.

Although Players Association chief Larry Fleisher said the fine against Abdul-Jabbar was too stiff, the majority sentiment around the league seems be that O'Brien was right in taking such strong action. Even many of the players privately acknowledge the need for strong deterrents to fighting.

"We can't have guys going out there and beating up on each other," one veteran NBA player said. "Fighting hurts everyone involved."

Indeed, the result of Abdul-Jabbar's punch could in itself be a deterrent to future fisticuffs. After all, he is out $5,000 and going to be sidelined about a month because of a broken hand, and Benson, the Milwaukee Bucks' standout rookie center, suffered a concussion and facial cuts.

While the bulk of the responsibility for keeping matters under control rests with the players, the game officials also can help. The refs couldn't do anything to prevent Abdul-Jabbar's sudden punch, but every step is being taken to avoid a repeat.

"Good officials know when something is about to happen," said Norm Drucker, a pro referee for the past 25 years and the NBA's new Supervisor of Officials. "It comes from experience. They can sense. Something happens at one end, and they'll look for trouble at the other end."

What happens when a referee senses trouble?

"There are things I've used, and all officials use," explained Drucker. "They can say things like, "Okay, I've had enough of you two, the next one is going.' Or, 'You throw one blow and it'll cost you.' You try to make them aware that we know what's going on."

The NBA also engages in some preventive medicine.

"We have meetings with each team before the season starts, either at training camp or before a preseason game," said Drucker. At those sessions, teams are briefed on rules changes and questions are answered about how referees see certain plays. Included is a reminder about the league's policy against fighting.

"The commissioner has made this a No. 1 priority—to do away with it as far as possible," said Drucker. Noting that an NBA season emcompasses over 1,000 exhibition, regular season and playoff games, Drucker said the number of fights is relatively small.

"I'm not condoning it, it's still bad," he said. "I thing we're always going to have some sort of reaction in a game where men are running around in the underwear getting bumped and slapped and poked, but I think it's a very low percentage. And it's going to be lower, because we've made everyone aware in out discussions with the teams before the season of the fines that may be imposed for fighting, and nobody likes to part with that kind of money."

Drucker supports O'Brien's strong stand against fighting.

"Basketball is a ballet sport," said Drucker. "This is not the place for fighting. In hockey, that sort of thing is expected, but basketball is not that type of game."

Huskers sign ball for Perry

By Virgil Parker
Sports Editor

Each member of the University of Nebraska football team put his signature on a ball before practice Monday.

Co-captains Jeff Carpenter and Greg Jorgensen will travel to Omaha Tuesday to present the ball to Colorado linebacker Tom Perry, who suffered a severe head injury in the game against the Huskers Saturday.

The NU players had already sent flowers and a card to Perry, who Monday morning was removed from the "critical" list and is now regarded in "fair" condition.

John Boone, acting administrator at the Nebraska Medical Center hospital in Omaha, says Perry should be moved from the intensive care unit to his own room sometime Tuesday.

Bone says the doctors tell him Perry "is doing great and has all of his faculties. He may be transferred back to Boulder as early as next week."

Sue Doerfler, president of the Tassels, a University of Nebraska women's booster group, said her organization was also preparing a get-well card for Perry.

The Tassels prepared a huge poster in the shape of a football helmet which was being signed Monday by students at the Union on the Lincoln campus.

Dr. Bradley Berman, who operated on Perry for four hours Saturday night following the game, said the Buff player suffered "a significant head injury."

Big game gives Hastings' Trautman rushing lead

By Ken Hambleton
State College Writer

Gary Trautman figured that he'd have a good season, but he didn't plan on leading the state in rushing.

Trautman, who rushed for 133 yards and grabbed two passes for 92 yards including a 71-yard touchdown pass Saturday, took over the state college rushing lead from Doane's Mike Ulmer to help Hastings top Concordia 28-0.

Trautman, who averages 103.5 yards rushing per game, knew he wasn't going to rush very often this season when he was switched from tailback to flanker at the start of the season.

But an injury to starting tailback Ted Schroeder in Hastings' opener against Doane forced Hastings coach Wendell Maupin to install Trautman at tailback and the results proved immediately successful.

Trautman rushed for a 71-yard touchdown against Colorado College and gained 167 yards, scored on a 70-yard touchdown run against Sioux Falls College and rushed for 110 yards and has teamed with running back Jim Doty for 12 touchdowns.

Doty, the fourth leading rusher in the state, along with Trautman give the 4-2 Broncos one of the best one-two running combinations in the state.

"The reason our rushing game is doing so well is the fact our offensive line is almost intact from last year," said Trautman, a 6-0, 185-pound junior. "Our isolation blocking is super and I really don't have to work that hard."

Guards Kevin Riggert, Jim Wacker and Jim Cronin, along with center Dan Meyers and tackles Dan Gilmore and Jim Sullivan all shared starting duty at one time or another last season on Hastings' Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference co-champion team.

"We really don't figure on the conference championship now that Midland is 3-0 and has Dana and Concordia left and we have two losses," said Trautman. "But with three more wins we can finish 7-2 and that's a pretty good season.

"Beating Doane this week is something we've all been waiting for since we lost to them in our opener," said Trautman. "And I think we've matured and improved so much since then we should have a better game."

Kearney and Wayne, first and second in the Central States Conference, continued to dominate the Kansas and Missouri teams in the league, as Kearney blanked Emporia 31-0 and Wayne topped Pittsburg 30-6.

Wayne, rated 19th in the NAIA Div. II, is 3-1 and 5-2 overall, while Kearney remained undefeated in the conference with a 4-0 mark and a 5-1-1 over record after five straight wins.

Rams romp past Vikings

Los Angeles (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams, with young Pat Haden accounting for three touchdowns in the opening half, finally looked like the team they were supposed to be Monday night.

An enigma through the first five weeks of the NFL campaign and the preseason when they went 1-5, the Rams looked like champions drubbing the proud Minnesota Vikings 353.

In only his second start of the season, Haden passed for a pair of touchdowns and scrambled for a third while cornerback Pat Thomas intercepted two Fran Tarkenton passes.and the Rams' defense sacked Minnesota's veteran quarterback four times for a total of 38 yards. It was the worst beating administered by the Rams to the Vikings since they drubbed them 39-3 in 1967, Bud Grant's first season as coach in Minnesota.

"This was a very satisfying win because we played well against a real good team," said Rams' Coach Chuck Knox. "The offense moved the ball, the defense did a great job and the special teams played with a lot of enthusiasm.

"Pat Haden did a great job. I hope our quarterback controversy is over. That certainly demonstrated that he is number one."

The Vikings were restricted to 206 total yards, 98 on the ground and Grant said: "The Rams were just too good. We've all had these games before and we might as well get it out of our system now, once and for all.

"But you have to hand it to the Rams. Their timing was excellent for this type of game. The game was obviously very important and since the Rams were playing at home and haven't looked good, they were obviously up. Every aspect of their game was tremendous."

Haden, who was elevated to the starting quarterback's role after the Rams got off to disappointing 2-2 start under Joe Namath, helped Los Angeles move into a first-place tie with Atlanta in the NFC West with a 4-2 record.

The former Southern Cal Rose Bowl hero, a seventhround draft choice of the Rams in 1975, gave them a 7-0 lead with just 4:22 gone in the game with a nifty 7-yard run on a scramble.

Thomas' two interceptions came in the second quarter and set up both of Haden's touchdown passes, the first a 2-yarder to tight end Charles Young at 6:44 and a 9-yarder to a diving Harold Jackson at 14:26 as the Rams jumped to a 21-0 halftime lead.

The Assembly Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics, in a 95 vote, also:

— Appealed to the NCAA eligibility committee to give Thompson and Winey a prompt rehearing and consider prompt restoration of their eligibility;

— And appealed to the NCAA infractions committee to lift the indefinite probation on all university sports.

The university already had accepted NCAA probation for the Minnesota basketball team until next March 4 despite the fact it considered the infractions "minor."

The action hurts Minnesota's basketball prospects for the coming season. Thompson, a 6-foot-10 senior center, holds Minnesota and Big Ten scoring records and Winey, a 6-10 senior forward, was named the most improved player on the team after his sophomore year.

But the vote is expected to take indefinite probation off other university teams, including the football team.

ISU seeking middle guard

Ames, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State Coach Earle Bruce's main concern Monday was trying to dig up a replacement for injured middle guard Ron McFarland.

The four-year regular was sidelined for the season with a torn knee ligament in Saturday's 35-16 loss at Oklahoma. McFarland underwent surgery Monday.

Freshmen John Meis and Greg Rensick and sophomore Jim Sweeney will be tried at the position during practice before the Cyclones host Kansas in Saturday's homecoming game, Bruce said.

Bruce held a heavier than usual workout Monday but said he planned to lighten the load a bit later in the week.

Bronco coach misses bus

Denver (UPI) — Bronco Coach Red Miller missed the team bus Sunday after Denver's 24-13 victory over Cincinnati, but he doesn't mind the fine he faces for being absent.

Miller was delayed leaving the game because he was busy signing autographs for fans outside Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. Two team buses left the stadium with officials on each thinking Miller was on the other.

Coach Miller said he thumbed a ride from two Cincinnati fans who took him to the airport. He said he promised them Bronco tickets if they ever get to Denver.

Graham's talk doesn't help

Cincinnati (UPI) — Not even Billy Graham could help the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

Graham, in town to conduct a crusade, delivered a short inspirational talk to the Bengals at the team's weekly chapel meeting at a downtown hotel before Sunday's game against the Denver Broncos.

"I didn't get to see the game," Graham later said, "but from what I understand it (the talk) didn't do much good."

Lanier, Money aid Pistons

Detroit (UPI) — Bob Lanier and Eric Money paced a second-half outburst Monday night that propelled the Detroit Pistons to a 100-85 NBA victory over the winless Boston Celtics.

Detroit had fallen behind, 49-42, at the half after getting the game's first ten points, but then Lanier and Money took command and the Pistons proceeded to outscore Boston, 21-4, during the first nine minutes of the third period and overall in the period, 27-9, to take a 67-58 lead.

During the period Lanier had ten points and Money eight, while Boston was restricted to only three baskets and three foul shots and at one stage went 4:10 without any score.

The Celtics rebounded early in the fourth period and led by Tom Boswell and Jo Jo White to cut the Detroit lead to 74-71 before Lanier with three baskets and a free throw and Money with three quick baskets put the game out of reach.

Montreal rips Caps, 5-1

Montreal (UPI) — Guy Lafleur scored once and assisted on two others Monday night to help Montreal Canadiens stretch their undefeated string to seven games with a 5-1 victory over the Washington Capitals.

It was the 20th straight win by Montreal, which has never lost to the Capitals.

Lafleur, the NHL scoring leader the past two seasons, made the score 2-0 with 10 seconds remaining in the first period when he got his fifth goal on a power-play from just inside the Washington blue line. Steve Shutt had given the Canadians a 1-0 lead at 13:21.

The Canadiens, 6-0-1 so far this season, scored two more goals in the second period. Yvon Lambert scored after only 24 seconds and Bill Nyrop got his first goal at 7:17.

Race officials seek photos

New York (AP) — The New York State Racing and Wagering Board and the New York Racing Association said Monday they were awaiting the arrival of identifying photos from Uruguay before pursuing a full investigation in an incident involving a horse named Lebon.

Lebon, a 5-year-old who raced with little success in Uruguay, won the ninth race at Belmont Park by four lengths Sept. 23 and paid $116 for a $2 bet.

An official of the NYRA, which operates Belmont Park, said a picture of Lebon in the winner's circle appeared in a Montivedeo newspaper and triggered charges that the horse was really Cinzano, who had won stakes races in Uruguay.

Cinzano supposedly was destroyed after being injured on the Long Island farm of Dr. Mike Gerard, a licensed, practicing veterinarian in New York.

One better reportedly collected $87,000 on the Sept. 23 race.

Westside still threat to Lincoln schools

Further checking of Nebraska School Activities Assn. (NSAA) playoff point standings reveals that Lincoln High and Lincoln East will need more help than a Ralston win over Omaha Tech to give the winner of Friday night's intra-city game a possible wild card spot in the playoffs.

Omaha Westside stands between the two Lincoln schools as a possible contender if Ralston beats Tech.

Should Westside defeat Omaha Ryan Friday night, and should two of Westside's opponents become "middle division teams" instead of losers with wins Friday night, the Warriors would finish with the same point total of the Lincoln winner.

Based on a 7-2 record, the Warriors would be first in line for that playoff berth since the best Lincoln High or East could finish is 6-3. Under NSAA guidelines, when two teams haven't played each other, the team with the most wins or fewest losses rules in a tie-breaker.

For Westside to finish the season with a 38.8 mark, it's highest possible, Metro Conference teams Omaha Burke and Omaha Bryan must win Friday night. Burke must beat Omaha North and Bryan must beat Roncalli.

The only other outcome that could put the Lincoln teams ahead of Westside is if Hastings should beat state qualifier Grand Island in their Friday season finale.

That would move Hastings from a lower division team (worth 40 points) to a middle division team (45 points) breaking the tie with Westside.

Note: In each class, the six district leaders automatically qualify for the state playoffs. Additionally, the top two teams out of the remaining schools in each class, regardless of district, qualify for the playoffs to complete the eight-team field. Once the qualifiers are determined, all eight teams are paired according to point totals. Pairings are: one v. eight; two v. seven; three v. six; four v. five.

Bartow describes changes

Lexington, Ky. (AP) — Gene Bartow has coached at both ends of the college basketball spectrum and proved he was not afraid of a big challenge this year when he left UCLA to install a program at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Bartow spoke about leaving the country's most glamorous collegiate coaching job while conducting a weekend seminar at Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall's basketball clinic. The session was appropriately dubbed "Starting a Program from Scratch."

"A lot of people wonder what kind of nut would walk out of UCLA to go to the University of Alabama at Birmingham," Bartow said jokingly. "I don't mind talking about it. I really never worried about being fired out there, but the assassination attempts had me a little worried."

When Bartow left Illinois to succeed the legendary John Wooden, it was widely predicted he would not survive the inevitable comparisons to the man whose teams won 10 NCAA championships in 12 years.

When Bartow's first Bruins' team lost to eventual champion Indiana in the NCAA semifinals at Philadelphia, UCLA alumni began grumbling.

When his second team was beaten by Idaho State in the West Regional semifinals last spring, the alumni began calling for Bartow's dismissal.

Turning serious for a moment, Bartow conceded he felt the pressure.

"I didn't enjoy it," he said, "and coaching is something you're supposed to be able to enjoy, to contribute something to young people.

"So, in the final analysis, it came down to a question: do I stay in this embattled position where I'm not having any fun, or do I go and start this program from scratch?"

He chose Birmingham, a school without a team. Bartow admitted his job figures to be a struggle in trying to compete with the University of Alabama in nearby Tuscaloosa, where Coach C. M. Newton has molded a national contender.

But there also are positive elements about the job, Bartow said.

"The best coaching is being done in high school and Birmingham high school coaches are very well organized," he said. "They are strict fundamentalists. That's why C. M. had four guys from Birmingham in his starting lineup.

Broncos, Falcons surprises

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

Less than halfway through its season, the National Football League already has had a full year's worth of surprises.

Exhibit A is the Denver Broncos, leaders of the American Football Conference's West Division. The Broncos, who have had only three winning seasons in 17 years, are 6-0 and beat Super Bowl champion Oakland two weeks ago, ending a 17-game Raiders' winning streak. The two teams play again Sunday at Denver.

Exhibit B is the Atlanta Falcons, sitting atop the National Football Conference's West Division with a 4-2 record. Those four victories match Atlanta's total in 14 games last season.

Other strange happenings include 2-4 starts for Cincinnati in the AFC Central and Chicago in the NFC Central. Both teams were considered contenders for their division crowns before the season.

In the AFC East, Miami owns a share of the lead with a 5-1 record in a year the Dolphins thought would be devoted to rebuilding after last year's 6-8 season.

There also have been individual surprises.

Sunday, Wayne Morris scored four touchdowns and rushed for 95 yards for St. Louis. That pushed his season's totals to five touchdowns and 259 yards, compared to three TDs and 292 yards all last year.

Sunday, Richard Todd of the New York Jets passed for four touchdowns and 396 yards, pushing his season's totals to seven TDs and 1,202 yards, compared to three TDs and 870 yards all last year.

There are similiar turnarounds throughout the individual statistics for the two conferences. But no about-faces have been as dramatic as the ones Atlanta and Denver have produced in the first six weeks of the season.

Neither team figured in their division races. The Broncos, after all, live in the AFC West, home of NFL champion Oakland. And the Falcons, work in the NFC West, dominated in recent years by the powerful Los Angeles Rams.

What's more, both teams are operating with castoff quarterbacks. Denver's Craig Morton was booed out of New York when he couldn't get the Giants' offense moving and journeyman Scott Hunter of Atlanta got his job only because Steve Bartkowski's injured knee required preseason surgery.

Both Denver and Atlanta are flourishing under the leadership of new coaches—Red Miller with the Broncos and Leeman Bennett with the Falcons. And both have found success through defense.

Atlanta leads the NFL in defense and has permitted only 32 points in six games—a shade over five points per game. The Falcons' defensive unit has not allowed a touchdown in the last month. Chicago's only TD in Sunday's 16-10 loss against Atlanta was on a kickoff return and that was just the third touchdown the Falcons have permitted all year.

UNO to induct Sorensen

Omaha — The University of Nebraska at Omaha Athletic Department, in cooperation with the UNO Alumni Association, has announced the first of three individuals to be inducted into the UNO Hall of Fame this year. The Hall of Fame Banquet will be held at Peony Park Nov. 11.

Howard Sorensen, a football and track standout for Omaha University from 1931-32 to 1935-36, has been selected from a group of ten nominees to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. Two more inductees will follow.

Sorensen, retired Principal of Omaha Benson High School, was a tackle on the C. L. Hartman and Ernie Hubka teams of the early 30's and was an NIAA selection for several years. The NIAA was the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Kings goalie satisfactory

Inglewood, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Kings goalie Rogie Vachon, hospitalized for precautionary testing because of a concussion he suffered last week, was in satisfactory condition early Monday, a Centinela Valley Hospital spokeswoman said.

Vachon was expected to be released from the hospital later in the day.

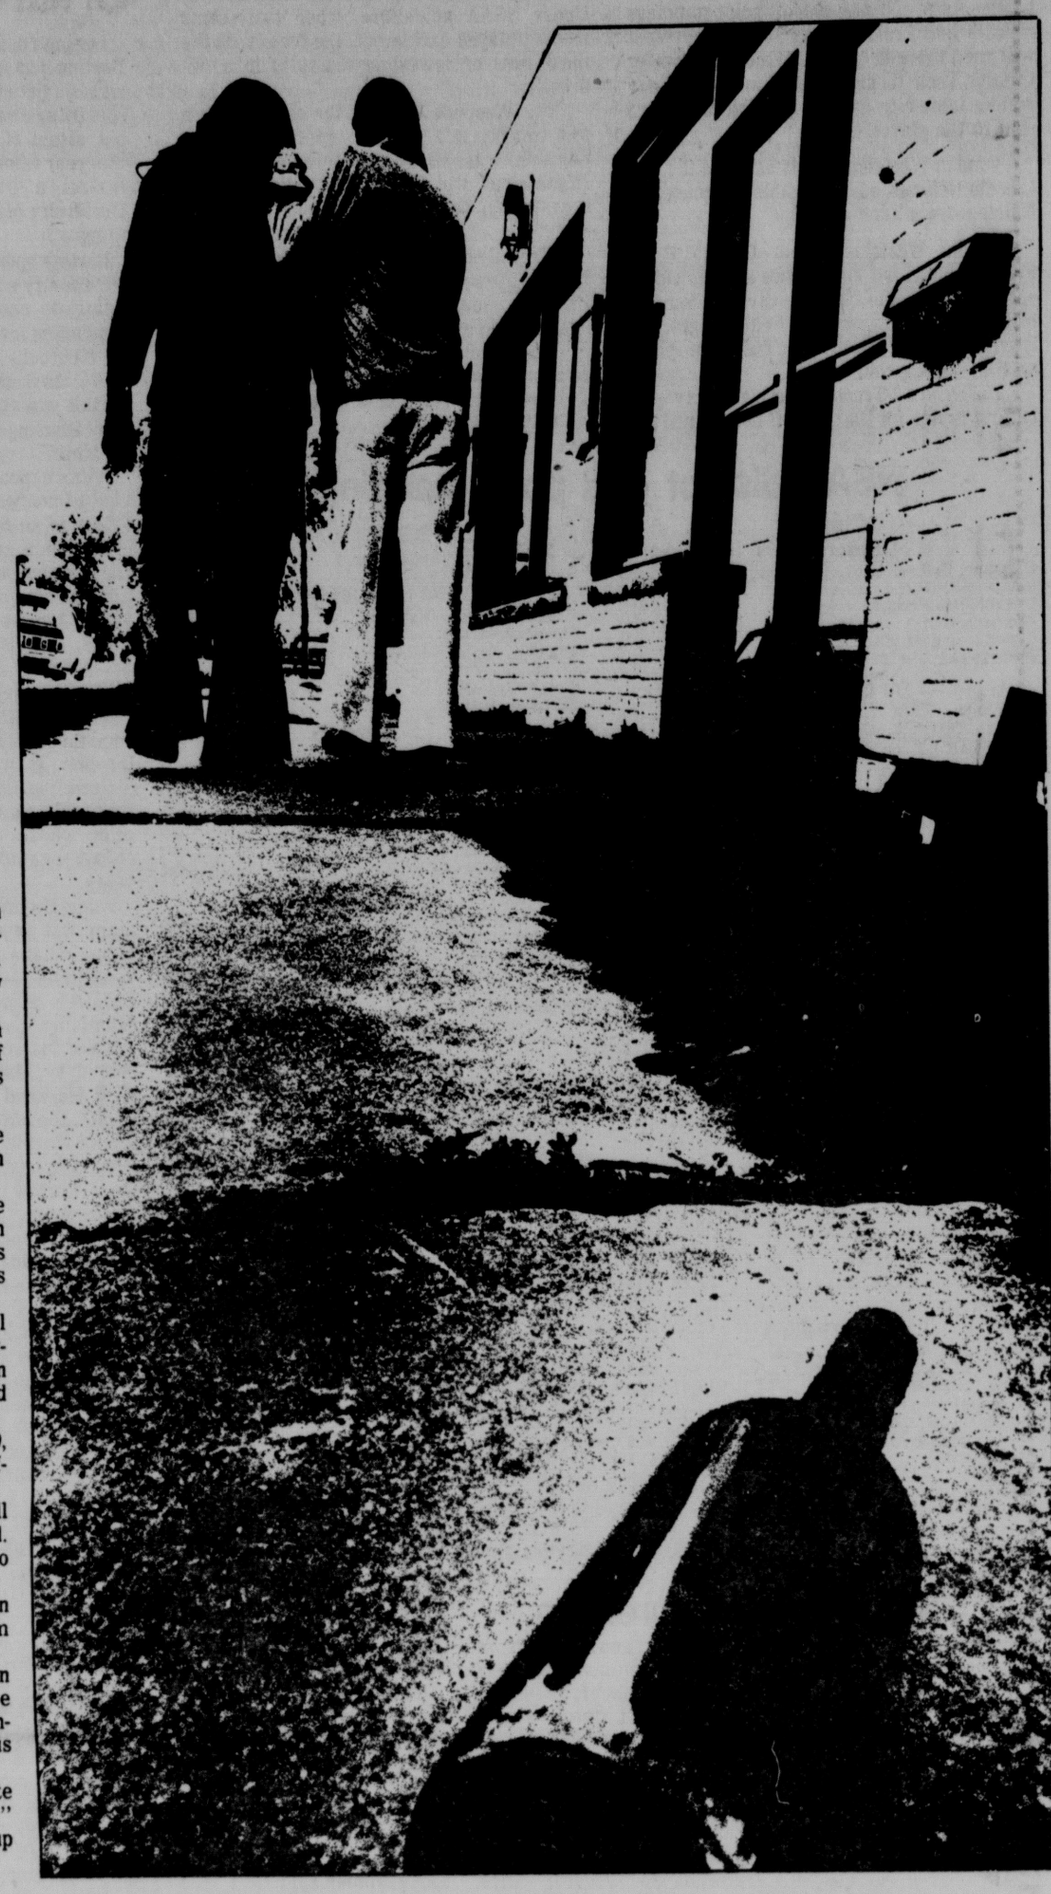
Alcoholism permeates Indian cultural fabric



Editor's note: This special report was written and photographed by Star staff writer Harry Jackson.

Imagine waking up one morning to a newspaper headline: "Disease Destroys Entire Society."

That's not so far-fetched a possibility. Native Americans, who once ruled this continent, have been devastated by the disease of alcoholism.

In Lincoln, a permanent population of about 1,300 Indians is debilitated by an alcoholism rate of about 40%. Another 55% is affected by alcoholism through problem drinking or having a family member with a drinking problem.

The statistics, supplied by the Lincoln Indian Center, show another frightening possibility: Alcoholism may have become a cultural facet of Indian life.

"There's a feeling that it's not the white settlers who defeated the Indian," said Indian Center Director Marshall Prichard: "It was alcohol."

Maybe the problem began about 400 years ago when fur-trappers began trading cases of whiskey to Indians for valuable pelts, Prichard speculated.

"Alcohol was introduced in a negative way," he said. "Kind of like heroin was introduced to Harlem."

"It seems to have been introduced to the Indian system to rip people off."

Historically, Indians used certain herbs and berry wines for religious purposes in controlled conditions, Prichard said. Those were their only intoxicants until traders began using alcohol for barter.

"Drunkenness began breaking down the controls," he said.

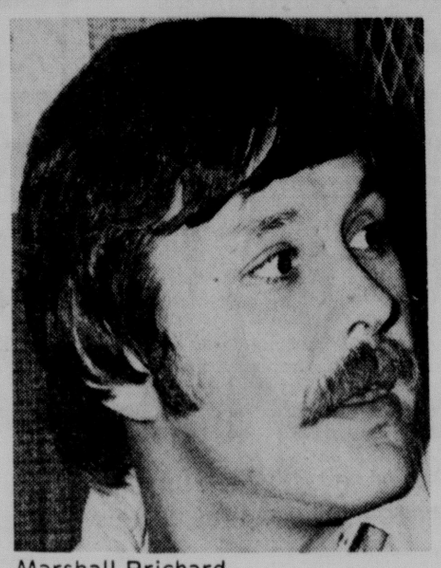
When the wars began and the Native Americans were pushed from their lands, slaughtered and thrown onto reservations, alcohol became an anesthetic to blur the problems the people faced, Prichard said.

"After awhile, the only way to cope was not to cope," he said.

In 1932, the government made an attempt to solve the alcohol problem by making sale of booze to Indians illegal, Prichard said. Bootlegging immediately thrived.

"Alcohol became institutionalized," Prichard said. "It became the way to turn away from the white wave and the displacement."

Hundreds of years after the first alcohol contact, about one million Indians are left in the United States. And still the group has the highest percentage of its population suffering from alcoholism than any other socio-economic group.



Marshall Prichard
. . . 'defeated by alcohol.'

"It's getting so ingrained in the culture, there's almost resistance to intervention," Prichard said. "It's so widely accepted that the people don't use any programs that are available.

"When a non-Indian goes through an alcoholism program, he'll get family and community support," he said. "It's likely an Indian will not get that support."

It's not uncommon to find an Indian family with two or three alcoholic members, Prichard said. And even when there's only one family member with a drinking problem, the illness is so common, no one takes notice.

Alcoholism treatment programs are plentiful in Lincoln, from free to high-priced, so the relatively small group of Indian alcoholics should be able to find help with no trouble.

But they don't. Conventional alcoholism programs aren't structured to handle the unique problems of Indians, Prichard said. Some Native Americans can't communicate in English and, because of cultural and religious differences, Indians may not relate to pressures the way non-Indians do.

Primarily because of the magnitude of the alcoholism problem among the Indian people and because of their religious and cultural differences, the Indian Center has convinced city and health officials that it should retain its own alcoholism counseling program.

But Prichard feels that isn't enough. He wants to institute a treatment program here for Native Americans.

The program would utilize Indian customs and religious practices.

For instance, the Sioux have a purification rite including a stay in a "sweat lodge" and ending with a ceremony before a medicine man. Prichard has hopes to add a sweat lodge to a new Indian Center building.

"The sweat lodge—purification lodge—is a very religious thing," Prichard said. "Instead of using a psychiatrist or social worker, he speaks to a medicine man."

The Indian Center also is reintroducing the concept of the "Iktomi," a symbol in Indian religion.

Iktomi, Sioux for spider, "represents the darker side of man," Prichard said. The demon tries to fool people with false promises and takes many forms—such as alcohol—to accomplish its mission.

"We want to reintroduce traditional medicine people instead of having clinical psychologists with Ph.D.s," he said. "We'd bring in a religious figure who'd run group sessions and talk about being Indian."

"Could you see a budget line item: $3,000, medicine man?" Prichard said with a half-hearted chuckle.

"Systems designed by non-Indians have all failed" for Native Americans, Prichard said. "There's never been a methodical approach to deal with Indians."

Raising the self-esteem of a down-trodden people is a big step to solving the alcoholism dilemma, he said.

"We still want to use certain facilities—Alcoholics Anonymous, the Detoxification Center—but we want to reintroduce the traditional concepts, religious beliefs and values.

"We don't mind being asked to compete from 8 to 5, but we won't be made white," Prichard said. "Indian people have to stand up and say "We're proud of who we are.' "

Menard has found his calling as a counselor of other Indians.

Identity found in Indian way

On a South Dakota Indian reservation, about 36 years ago a couple tried to raise a son their way, the Indian way. But federal regulations demanded adherence to another way.

The boy, Alfred Memard, was to be taken from his parents if he didn't attend school. He did, at a Catholic school on the reservation.

There, he was confronted by the first of many radical conflicts between his world and the other world.

He was told that God created all things and ruled all things; that those who abided by the rules went to a fine place, but those who didn't were condemned forever to Hell.

The information left his head spinning. He had learned that a kind God who loved all things put him here to develop virtues and that after this life there was a better life.

He became confused. The religious teaching wasn't the only conflict he ran into, but it was indicative of what his life would be like for decades.

As a youth, he resented the contradiction of his culture. He learned to look at the white man as an entity fit only to be conquered, fought.

When his family moved to Scottsbluff, the situation didn't change. The small bit of autonomy gained on a reservation was lost to the urbanized setting.

He'd been taught to ride, to hunt, to live with the land and nature. Asphalt and buildings left a bad taste.

He wasn't concerned with making money, but in the city, it's as essential as water to the countryside.

A short juvenile crime career culminated with his stealing a bicycle and being sent to the Youth Development Center at Kearney.

Again, the conflict between his culture and the white culture surfaced. Although he only had eaten when he was hungry and slept when he was tired, he was ordered to follow a strict schedule. When he didn't he was disciplined.

After leaving the Kearney institution, he tried relating to the white culture on its terms, not his. He cut his hair; learned the language.

All he found was that even though someone wanted him to act socially acceptable, he'd never be accepted.

By the time he was 17, he felt defeated. The spiritual and moral pain was so immense, he sought some solace; an anesthetic — alcohol.

For the next decade and a half, he was in and out of prison six times, spending more than 14 years of his life in prisons.

Somehow, Menard made his way back to his South Dakota home, drawn there by his dead-end existence.

There, as an Indian, he began a purification process. He entered a sweat lodge with the steam and hot rocks and willows.

Then the ceremonies, the Indian purification rates. He didn't celebrate the Eucharist. He didn't sit in a pew and sing hymns. That wasn't his way, he decided.

Finally, he spoke with the medicine man, the last step to changing his life. The medicine man told him a few simple facts:

"That is not your world. You're fighting their way and not accepting yourself.

You must remember, you're an Indian. You'll always be an Indian.

"You can be what you are. Be strong, proud. You'll be superior in thoughts and language and production."

Menard had something to grasp: an identity. He knew that no matter which culture he lived in, he would always be an Indian and he would do things as an Indian.

"Now I see people as people. We're all human beings put here to love and work."

Menard is an alcoholism counselor at the Indian Center. He's not drinking any more. He hasn't since his religious reawakening a year ago.

He braids his hair and ties it with rawhide. He wears the traditional ornaments, and is sharing his knowledge and insights with persons who are fighting the battles he's already won.

"You can tell us anything you want," he said. "But we know this is ours," he said.

"It gave me something to identify with. My own religion. My own beliefs."

ALCOHOLISM

In the oral literature of the Sioux are stories about Iktomi [spider] who is a trickster. Iktomi has the ability to change himself into other forms to fool mankind. Iktomi represents the individual acts of one person, the archetype is that of an individual versus society. When the individual person seeks to satisfy his own personal needs or wants, he neglects the well-being of all other people. Iktomi always forgets any good lesson and is apt to commit the same error over and over.

In the logo for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Aberdeen Area Alcoholism Office Iktomi appears as a bottle and is trying to fool the Lakota people with false promises. Alcoholism is the modern day Iktomi. We should remember and learn from the morals and meaning of the Iktomi stories. Let's not get caught in his web.

Susceptibility seems cultural

There is no physiological reason why Indians should be more susceptible to alcoholism than any other race or culture.

"We used to think of the Indian as physiologically different, but there isn't any detectable difference other than individual differences that all races have," said Dr. Robert A. Chesnut, medical consultant for the city detoxification center.

Chesnut, himself a recovered alcoholic, said there are physiological factors such as metabolism rates which make certain individuals candidates for alcoholism. But no one race is totally affected, he said.

The Lincoln Indian population and the nation's Indian people, however, still have alcoholism rates three to five times higher than the rest of the population.

The problem is cultural, Chesnut said, not physical.

"There's no history of alcohol among Indians," he said. "They hadn't been drinking for centuries like, say, the Italians.

"This was thrust upon them so abruptly that all they'd found was a new abusable drug," Chesnut said.

The entire alcoholism process is the same for the Indian population as for anyone else, Chesnut said. But the difference is the motivation—or demotivation—which brings on the problem and the method of curing the illness.

Alcoholism may be brought on by problems, such as handling guilt reactions or anger or pride. Combatting the problems can be a part of therapy, Chesnut said.

Without individualized treatment, Indian people are facing a loss of cultural pride, tribal pride.

Recovery involves relating to, probing and bringing a person to grips with physical, mental, emotional and spiritual recovery, Chesnut said.

This is when the person must be counseled on handling a job, coping with society, relating to his or her family, basically showing how to live without anesthetizing the problems away, Chesnut said.

Because of cultural differences, magnified by many Indians' living much of their lives on reservations, sheltered from changes of contemporary society, an Indian may be troubled by everything from haircuts to women's lib to racism, Chesnut said. The therapy can't be the same as for a white executive who went over the line because of corporate pressures.

"There has to be a multi-disciplinary approach to the disease," Chesnut said. "Indian communities do much better when they have counselors who understand their problems."

Wife wishes husband's education would pay off like neighbor's union

DEAR ABBY: My husband works long hours (without overtime pay) in a position of importance with a large, nationally-known firm. He's had six years of college, but some of the men who operate machinery make more money than he does. This hurts.

For example. our neighbor never even finished high school. He does manual labor, but because he belongs to a union, he earns more and has more benefits than my husband. It doesn't seem fair that with all my husband's education he isn't able to give his family as much as some uneducated laborers.

I am not saying that common laborers should make less, but in a society screaming for youngsters to get an education, it's ironic that uneducated laborers should make more than college graduates. I hope you aren't too intimidated by big business to respond in your column.

RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: I understand your resentment, but perhaps those whom you label "common laborers" are skilled laborers in their field. Many men who have never seen the inside of a college (or high school) have a technical knowledge equal in importance to some college educations.

I, too, would like to see higher education bring greater rewards, but don't confuse a man's worth with his college education — or lack of it.

Opening lead - jack of clubs.

Let's suppose you have a 50 per cent chance of making a contract by playing a hand in a certain way. Then, if you're by nature a careful individual, you look for another method of play that raises your chance of success to 75 per cent, or even 100 per cent, if that's possible.

The opportunity to apply this principle occurs time and time again, and it is one of the most important weapons in declarer's bag of tricks. If he cannot attain the 100 per cent chance he'd like to have, declarer looks for the next best thing to it.

For example, if you're South in this deal, you see that you must lose a club, probably a heart, and possibly a spade. Your aim should be to minimize the chance of losing the spade trick. You shouldn't rely on a spade finesse if it can be avoided, even though it seems likely that East has the queen because he bid the suit.

Therefore, upon ruffing a club at trick two, you should start preparing for an endplay. Enter dummy with a trump, ruff the last club, then lead another round of trumps before playing A-K and another heart. You don't know which defender will win the heart, but you hope it's West. If it is, you're home — irrespective of what he returns.

In the actual hand, East wins the third round of hearts, which is not ideal, but is also not a great hardship. When he returns a low spade you simply follow low, trapping West's queen and putting an end to all your worries.

Note that if you had not relied on the endplay, but had bet all your chips on the success of a spade finesse, you would have gone down by losing a spade trick to West's queen.

Bible 'illiteracy' is criticized

Nashville (AP) — The president of the Southern Baptist Convention, the Rev. Jimmy Allen, says Biblical illiteracy is of "epic proportions" in this country, and that the Bible has become a "foreign language" to many Americans.

"No wonder citizens are flim-flammed by every kind of religious pitchmanship," he says.

Stocks decline again

New York (AP) — Stock prices declined again Monday in a session marked by a negative signal for followers of one popular theory of market trends.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 5.98 to 802.32, reaching a new two-year low for the third time in the last four sessions.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index dropped .37 to 50.24, and the broad tally of NYSE issues showed losers outnumbering gainers by more than a 2-1 spread.

But it was Dow Jones' average of 20 transportation stocks—rails, airlines and trucking companies—that dominated the attention of a good many Wall Streeters.

Dow Ind. -5.98

The average, with a 3.07 slide to 201.74, broke below the low of 203.85 it touched in October 1976.

The so-called Dow Theory holds, in simplest terms, that a basic downtrend in stock prices is established when both the Dow industrial and transportation averages stand at new lows.

Though there are differing interpretations of the theory; and not everyone subscribes to it, analysts noted that Monday's developments could be important for the market since they might influence the buy and sell decisions of a significant number of investors.

"It should be remembered that the Dow Theory is not a forecasting tool," observed Newton Zinder at E.F. Hutton & Co. in a recent discussion of that approach to technical analysis of the market. "It merely attempts to identify the major trend.

"With both the transportation and industrial averages in gear on the downside, the major trend is down. (And as some cynics are likely to say, now it tells us.)"

The decline came on a day of little dramatic financial news. As expected, many banks across the country joined in a prime rate increase from 7½ to 7¾ per cent initiated on Friday by New York's Citibank.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials dropped .66 to 100.97.

Gasohol plant boosted by Whelan

Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan has joined Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., in calling for a mobilized effort to secure a gasohol plant in Nebraska.

"Nebraska certainly deserves the most serious possible consideration for the location of one of these pilot plants," Whelan said.

"We have done more to develop the technology of the blending of ethanol with gasoline than any other state," he added.

Gasohol is a blend of 90% unleaded gasoline with 10% ethanol alcohol made from grains. Nebraska officials are hoping to get one of the four federally funded pilot gasohol projects located in the state.

Whelan, who chairs the Governor's Energy Advisory Committee, released his statement in response to Thone's call for a joint effort to promote Nebraska for one of the plant's locations.

Whelan praised various state agencies and groups for cooperating on the venture.

"Our State Energy Office, the Department of Economic Development and the University of Nebraska stand ready to assist any public, private or cooperative organization in preparing its application for these guaranteed loans."

Whelan also reported the groups are urging the Nebraska Public Power District and the Omaha Public Power District to offer their help to any potential applicant.

Nebraska tax burden below average

Chicago (UPI) — Americans paid an average of $731 in state and local taxes in fiscal 1976 and Alaskans replaced New Yorkers as citizens bearing the heaviest state and local tax burdens, the Commerce Clearing House reported Monday.

The $731 average was a jump of $67 per person from fiscal 1976, said CCH, Chicago-based tax and business law publishers.

Per capita state and local tax burdens increased in every state during the fiscal year. Taxes ranged from $1,896 in Alaska to a low of $454 in Arkansas.

New York had topped the list for 10 straight years until the Alaska average jumped a whopping $1,054 between fiscal 1975 and 1976. The Alaska increase was due to property taxes which shot up to $400 million in fiscal 1976 from $76 million in the previous year.

New York, in second place with $1,140, was the only other state to pass the $1,000 mark in per capita taxes.

Rounding out the top 10 were: California $964, Hawaii $935, District of Columbia $924, Massachusetts $903, Wyoming $847, Minnesota $823, Nevada, $820, and Maryland $814.

In Nebraska, state and local tax burdens averaged $658 for 1976 and $577 in 1975.

While Alaska was hit with the highest increase in fiscal 1976, Indiana was low with an increase of $8.

California took the lead from New York by bringing $20.7 billion in tax revenues into its state and local government coffers. Following were New York with $20.6 billion, Illinois with $8.6 billion and Pennsylvania with $8.1 billion.

About three dozen laid off at Hy-Gain

The Hy-Gain Electronics plant at Lincoln has laid off about three dozen workers due to a parts shortage, according to Dick Whitcomb, a company spokesman.

"We hope the cutback is short term," Whitcomb said. "We'll have to see what the marketplace does on sales leading into the holidays."

Hy-Gain's work force in the Lincoln area is 450. Some six months ago, it was 500 or more.

Hy-Gain makes Citizen Band radios and other electronic equipment.

Buying wave boosts futures

Chicago (AP) — Indications of new export business and continued farmer holding touched off a wave of speculative buying that boosted soybean and grain futures prices Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Firmly higher opening prices triggered short-covering by local professionals and some stop-loss commission house buying. Additional increases accompanied substantial commercial purchases in the corn pit.

Bing's will lists $400,000 in gifts

Redwood City, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby's will lists cash gifts of $400,000 to 14 relatives and friends but guarantees secrecy for what becomes of the bulk of his estate.

The nine-page document was filed for probate Monday in San Mateo County Superior Court.

Crosby, one of the world's favorite entertainers and a resident of nearby Hillsborough, died at 74 in Spain after a round of golf Oct. 14.

The will was filed by attorney Richard S. Arnold of Los Angeles, who said the bulk of the Crosby estate is governed by a "living trust," drawn up along with the will last June 27.

The living trust, essentially a private will, designates how the singer's estate will be distributed. It also offers tax benefits and guarantees privacy.

Richard C. Bergen, Crosby's longtime attorney and friend, was designated executor of both the will and the Harry L. Crosby Trust. Harry was Bing's given name.

Maury Foladare, Crosby's press spokesman, said in Los Angeles that the living trust makes provisions for all of the Crosby children, including four sons from his first marriage and two sons and a daughter from his second marriage.

Arnold said a tentative estimate of Crosby's wealth has been compiled, but refused to reveal it. He said the size of the estate probably will be made public at a later date.

The document filed Monday detailed the cash gifts, included funeral instructions and left his personal possessions, including cars, jewelry, books, paintings, works of art and other personal effects, to his widow, Kathryn.

The cash bequests included $150,000 to his wife, $50,000 each to Gonzaga High School and Gonzaga University, both in Spokane, Wash., and $5,000 to St. Aloysius Catholic Church in Spokane.

The will specifically asked that his funeral services be "completely private" and directed that "no memorial service of any kind be held."

Other cash gifts included:

— $15,000 each to nieces Carolyn Miller Quinn of Albuquerque, N.M., and Marilyn McLachlan of Watsonville, Calif.

— $10,000 each to nieces Mary Sue Shannon of Mission Viejo, Calif., and Catherine Crosby Harvey of Santa Monica, Calif.

— $20,000 to his sister, Mary Rose Pool, of Carmel, Calif.

— $5,000 to a cousin, Marian Harrigan, who was identified in the will as deceased.

— $25,000 to Basil F. Grillo of Camarillo, Calif., Crosby's business manager and president of Bing Crosby Enterprises.

— $20,000 to Leo Lynn of Los Angeles, a close associate for 43 years and former schoolmate.

— $15,000 to Lillian Murphy of Santa Monica, secretary of Bing Crosby Enterprises.

— $10,000 to Louis Serpe of Beverly Hills, identified as a driver for Crosby's parents while they were alive.

A court hearing was scheduled for Nov. 15 to admit the will to probate and formally appoint the executor.

Car returns, but jewels gone

Seattle (AP) — It began with a tap on the shoulder. A few minutes and a short drive at gunpoint later, Victor W. Nash was standing ain a Seattle street, watching his car disappear into morning rush hour traffic with $2 million in jewels in the trunk.

Nash, 57, owner of International Gemstones Inc. of San Francisco, said the theft occurred Monday morning as he was leaving his motel room at the edge of Seattle's downtown to go to a department store gem show.

Within hours, police located his plum-colored 1977 Cadillac, but the four crates of gems that had filled the car's trunk were gone, Nash said.

Police are looking for the robber, described by Nash as 40 to 45 years old, in need of a shave and "disheveled."

The gem display was publicized in weekend newspapers that included a sketch of Nash. He said it was unusual for him to keep the jewels with him but he could not get anyone to unlock the department store for him when he arrived in Seattle Sunday night after holding a similar show in Oregon.

Nash said the collection represented everything he owned and was not insured because "it's impossible" to insure collections over $100,000.

"I am out of business. Ruined," he said. "Forty years of work — my whole life is gone."

Nash said he had left the jewels in the trunk of the car, equipped with a burglar alarm, rather than take them into his room.

It was still dark, between 7 and 8 a.m., when he opened the car door to put away two briefcases which carried only papers, Nash said. He said his assistant, Pat Johnson, was waiting for him in the coffee shop.

When he was tapped on the shoulder, Nash said he turned and saw the man "had a large handgun, with a long barrel pointed at my mid-section. He told me he was holding me up."

Nash said he was ordered behind the wheel and told to start driving toward the downtown area.

"It was a very scary experience," said Nash. "I got to thinking about going in some alley where there would be two people and I was really frightened."

Nash said he also thought about the recent disappearances and murders of jewel dealers in New York.

He said the first two stoplights he came to were green but at the third one, which was red, he opened the door and fell from the car.

Nash said the gunman grabbed for him and tried to hit him with the gun, but only grazed the back of his head. Although there was a lot of traffic, Nash said he had difficulty getting anyone to help him until he finally stopped a pickup truck driven by a city employee.

By then the Cadillac had disappeared. It was found within a mile of where Nash jumped out.

Seattle police spokesman Gary Flynn said the collection included 20,000 varied stones and would "not be easy to dispose of. It will have to go to somebody who deals in stones."

Four hostages are released one at a time

Montreal (AP) — A bank robber armed with a rifle ordered four hostages into a getaway car but then released them one at a time during a drive north of Montreal. They were held captive for about six hours.

A suspect, identified as a man about 30 years old, was arrested minutes after he had freed his last hostage in the town of Lachenaie.

Authorities said all the money taken from a branch office of the Candian National Bank was recovered.

There were reports the robber had taken about $80,000, stuffing the money into two plastic garbage bags.

Forced to accompany the rifleman were three bank employees and Serge Labrosse, a reporter for the newspaper Le Journal de Montreal.

Hampton pokes at proposal for beautifying parking lots

A proposed new law to beautify parking lots was criticized Monday by Councilman Joe Hampton, who said it is an example of overregulation by government.

The proposal calls for parking lots to be screened from the eye and ear by the use of plantings, fences or earthen banks and requires them to be surfaced with either asphalt or concrete.

"I think people are getting tired of all this regulation and red tape," Hampton said. He questioned the value of requiring the screening when the parking lot borders a busy street.

Architect Larry Enersen, one of those instrumental in drafting the proposed law over a three-year period, said he thinks it is important for the city to be visually appealing.

He said the new law has another benefit in that it consolidates existing parking lot requirements into one law to make it easier to enforce.

Also supporting the proposal was Laurence Brown, 2629 Ryons, who said it would be nice if people would be altruistic and good neighbors in beautifying their parking lots, but "unfortunately, this is the real world."

In other busienss the council took the following action:

—Appointed the Rev. Ron Bump to the Community Development Task Force.

—Extended completion dates for sidewalks in Briarhurst West Add. to April 1, 1978, and in Southwood Hills 1st Add. to Sept. 18, 1978.

—Created Arnold Heights Trust Fund for construction of Arnold Heights improvements.

—Expressed the desire of City Council to preserve, restore and use for public purposes the old City Hall at 10th and O St. and the old Federal Building at 10th and P, reglardless of outcome of bond issue for Civic Center.

—Approved proclamation of mayor on special election Nov. 8.

—Authorized city to subsidize storm sewer on southwest corner of 70th and O Sts.

—Amended Centrum redevelopment plan.

—Denied application of Joseph R. Kerrey and Dean Rasmussen for Class C liquor license at 321 Apple Creek Rd.

—Approved application of Theodore H. Parent for Class C liquor license for Elks, 131 Centennial Mall.

—Approved application of Keith Irving Hovermale for Class C liquor license for Lincoln Air Host, Inc.

—Withdrew long form request for Royal Grove and George's Tavern, enabling them to renew license without closing.

—Created grading districts 118, graveling district 291 and water district 1040.

—Approved request of Y Motel to name street between Hwy. 77 and Hwy. 6 Russell Dr.

—Approved final plat of Lohse Add., at 70th and Pioneers Blvd.

—Approved final plat of Cox Estates, near 70th and north of Pioneers Blvd.

—Delayed action on amending municipal code to conform with state statutes on equal opportunity.

—Approved final plat of Pine Lake 6th Add. west of S. 84th and north of Pine Lake Add.

Forsberg ponders manager's post

Omaha (UPI) — Mayoral assistant Terry Forsberg said Monday he has asked for "six months to a year" to determine if he should become manager of Omaha's city auditorium, Orpheum Theater and Rosenblatt Stadium.

Forsberg said Mayor Al Veys and Public Property Director Arthur Bradley had approached him on his interest in the job. Forsberg has been acting manager of the three facilities since former manager Charles Mancuso suffered a fatal heart attack.

Forsberg said he didn't interpret the comments by Veys and Bradley as a formal job offer but rather he said they wanted to know his feelings about the possibility.

Forsberg was a veteran television reporter before joining Veys' staff and he said he was "still very interested in journalism."

On the prospect of being appointed Mancuso's successor, Forsberg said, "I really don't know if that's what I'd like my career to be."

Penal complex kitchen fails to meet standards

The latest inspection of the Nebraska Penal Complex kitchen shows the facility fails to meet minimum health standards required by a court order.

Federal District Court Judge Warren Urbom said last summer the kitchen must be cleaned up by March or face closure by the court.

The inspection Friday turned up 49 demerits in the kitchen. It would be automatically closed if it were a private restaurant facing a health department inspection.

The 49 demerits compares with 48 in a September inspection and 76 in June.

Gary Hosek of the State Health Department said he will not recommend that Judge Urbom approve the facility until the kitchen receives fewer than 30 demerits.

The health department is conducting a food handling clinic for prisoners who work in the kitchen and a sanitation course through Southeast Community College is being planned.

Trusty takes out garbage, keeps going

Lincoln police Monday night were looking for a 22-year-old city jail trusty who escaped while taking out garbage.

Allen Bybee, held in city jail pending extradition to Pottawattamie County, Iowa, on a felony warrant, escaped on foot at 7:30 p.m. when he and another inmate were taking out garbage at the sheriff's garage, police said.

Bybee, a Lincoln resident, is white, approximately 5 feet 10, and weights 155 pounds. He has curly strawberry-blond hair, a full beard, and blue eyes and was last seen wearing a light-colored, brown-striped T-shirt and jeans.

Tax spending limits explained to council

City Council members were told Monday that they are not legally permitted to spend tax money to promote bond issues such as those proposed for storm sewers and the civic center.

City Attorney Charles Humble said that the council could spend money urging people to vote, but that it cannot go beyond that, for example, to listing facts in support of the proposed bond issue.

Humble said the presentation of facts would be construed as presenting an argument one way or another.

City councilmen and the mayor are permitted to spend their own money to support or defeat the bond issues, Humble said.

The proposed $6.8 million bond issue for storm sewers and the proposed $7 million bond issue for a performing arts center will be on a special election ballot Nov. 8.

Councilman objects to mayor's nomination

An exchange between Mayor Helen Boosalis and Councilman Bob Sikyta over a mayoral nominee took a personal turn at a Monday luncheon.

Sikyta objected to the mayor's nomination of attorney Fred Kauffman from a panel of three selected for the Lincoln General Hospital board by the board itself.

Sikyta told the mayor she had led him to believe she was planning to appoint one of the other two men suggested by the board — either banker Gordon Kuhn or Lee Liggett. Mayor Boosalis said she made no commitment.

Sikyta: "You're right again, as usual mayor."

Mrs. Boosalis: "Poor Bob."

Councilman Bob Jeambey: "I move we adjourn."

Sikyta: "I'm getting pretty damn tired . . ."

Lincoln tavern added to list

The City Council Monday added Oscar's Lounge to the list of taverns which will be watched because of disturbances during the past year.

There are now 10 taverns affected by the council's new policy, under which police will make quarterly reports on conditions at the taverns.

Schwartzkopf asks industrial zoning on land

Landowner Ed Schwartzkopf Monday urged the City Council to allow industry along Salt Creek in southwest Lincoln.

The rezoning requested by Schwartzkopf would require the council to reverse the recommendation of the City-County Planning Commission. The land is now zoned for residential and rural uses.

The tract is bounded by S. 1st, the Salt Creek channel, South and Sumner Sts. It is shown as park land on the new Comprehensive Plan and is bounded by Sawyer-Snell Park on the west.

The rezoning was opposed by the South Salt Creek Neighborhood Association, but was favored by property owners with land near Schwartzkopf's.

Early morning bowling asked by Briarpark

Feel like some night-owl bowling?

That's what Briarpark Lanes manager Michael Vogt wants to offer his customers. Vogt Monday asked the council to overturn a city law requiring bowling alleys to close at 1 a.m.

Vogt said he feels that there is a demand for bowling after those hours, particularly among factory workers who have a 3 to 11 p.m. shift.

Broadway booth gets face lift

New York (UPI) — The TKTS booth in Duffy Square, which has become a fixture of the theater district since it opened in 1973, has taken on a new look this season: an eye-catching red and white paint job on its familiar canvas sails.

It also has added two additional windows, for a total of six.

TKTS, which sells tickets for non-capacity Broadway and off-Broadway shows at half-price on the day of performance, has sold more than 2.7 million tickets for a gross of more than $15 million since it opened. It is credited with turning several slow off-the-mark shows into hits.

Together with an offshoot booth on Wall Street, TKTS is operated by the Non-Profit Theatre Development Fund, which also subsidizes off-off-Broadway and dance programs through theater and dance vouchers.

Is saving oil worth $274 a barrel?

By Roberta Hornig
(c) Washington Star

Washington — After taking a close look at one of Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long's energy tax credits — $200 million a year for intercity buses — the Congressional Budget Office has concluded the measure would lead to "marginal" energy savings and could cost Americans around $274 for each barrel of oil saved.

Further major findings of the CBO study are that:

—Major recipients of the credit are the Greyhound Bus Lines and Continental Trailways, both subsidiaries of large conglomerate corporations. They provide about 70% of intercity bus service.

—The argument that these bus industries need help is false because they receive at least a 13% rate of return on their investments.

The bus tax credit, which is contained in the Finance Committee's bill that is to be debated on the Senate floor beginning Tuesday, is one that White House aides have described as "obnoxious."

That view appears to be backed up by the CBO study, which was obtained by The Washington Star.

The study was made at the request of four senators — Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and John Heinz, R-Pa.

The $200 million tax credit is one of the major items in the unusual bill that emerged from the Finance Committee. It is a unique piece of legislation because it contains about $40 billion in tax credits, but none of President Carter's proposed taxes to support his energy program.

Long's scheme appears to be attracting some of the most intensive opposition the chairman has faced in the Senate.

The Senate Budget Committee, headed by Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, has scheduled a special meeting Tuesday to determine whether the bus credits and the remaining $40 billion in other items would cause the Senate to exceed its budget limits, and whether the Long bill consequently should be killed on parliamentary grounds.

The CBO study, directed by Alice M. Rivlin, clearly knocks down the Finance Committee's view that intercity buses face financial difficulty.

It specifically states that while buses faced problems last year, these have been erased through regulatory procedures of the Interstate Commerce Commission and that it is premature to conclude that the intercity bus industry is experiencing any severe, short-term financial difficulty.

Moreover, the study states, energy savings would amount to "clearly no more than 2,000 barrels of oil per day," or about 740,000 barrels of oil a year.

This is how the study arrives at the $274 a barrel figure — and that's a minimum estimate — for oil now selling at somewhere around $14 a barrel.

The study also notes that the companies — Greyhound and Trailways — that would benefit most are "wholly owned subsidiaries of large conglomerate corporations."

It says that Greyhound is owned by the Greyhound Corp. which is involved in food processing and services, consumer products, lending and financing, pharmaceuticals, consulting, manufacturing and other services.

Continental Trailways is owned by Holiday Inns Inc., the report says.

"It would . . . be difficult to ensure that the bus companies, and not the holding companies, benefit from the . . . tax credit," the study says.

As authorized by the Finance Committee, the credit would last for only five years.

The committee, in its deliberation, said the measure was necessary to save energy and to help out an industry in financial difficulty.

The committee measure would provide $100 million for reduced bus fares and the other $100 million for capital expenditures.

Car production likely to pass June levels

Detroit (AP) — The U.S. auto industry hit high gear this week, with projections calling for the biggest production total since late June.

Despite the closing of all American Motors Corp. lines at the firm's Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant, the industry expects to assemble 216,394 cars this week, the highest weekly figure since 216,788 were built the week ended June 25.

Faster carving wanted

Custer, S.D. (AP) — The directors of the Crazy Horse Memorial Foundation want the mountain sculpture of the Sioux Indian chief to be finished in the next few years.

That will mean speeding up the carving process, and that will take more money.

The foundation's board of directors has created a task force which will have until Jan. 1 to come up with a plan for raising $20 million in the next five years.

Board member Jessie Sundstrom of Custer said sculptor Korczak Ziolkowski has accomplished what she called "miracles" in the 30 years he has worked on the mountain.

But she said the sculptor, now 69 years old, won't have much time to finish the project.

"He deserves to see its completion," she said.

The board voted to borrow $100,000 to hire more workers immediately. At this time only Ziolkowski and his two sons are working on the mountain.

Ziolkowski is carving the top of a mountain near Custer in the southern Black Hills into a huge statue of the Sioux Chief Crazy Horse on horseback.

Boy takes his own photograph

This portrait of a Russian youngster was the result of an experiment by photographer David Attie. He set up a camera and bulb release in front of a mirror last year at the U.S.-U.S.S.R. cultural exchange exhibit in Kiev and allowed his subjects to snap themsleves. This photo appears in Photography Annual 1978. It will also appear in Attie's forthcoming book, "Russian Self-Portraits."

Carter calls on nation to save freedom

Washington (AP) — President Carter, observing Veterans Day, called on the nation Monday to join him in a "demonstrable will to preserve freedom in order to prevent war."

This, he said, would serve as "gratitude for those in the past who have given their lives and those who were willing to give their lives for the preservation of the greatest nation on earth."

Carter spoke at the Memorial Amphitheater at Arlington National Cemetery after placing a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

A crowd of 3,000 stood in mute reverence while the ceremony unfolded, as it has each year for six decades, with a 21-gun salute, a muffled drum roll, a bugler playing "Taps" and a minute of silence as honor squads from each service stood at attention.

Carter was accompanied by his wife and their daughter, Amy. On hand were Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Agricuture Secretary Bob Bergland, members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and representatives of other government agencies, Congress and the Supreme Court.

National leaders or representatives of most of the nation's veterans groups were present. Flags were handed out and waved in a massive display after the playing of the national anthem.

Carter was introduced by his longtime friend, Max Cleland, head of the Veterans Administration, who lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam.

He told the President, "Your presence here means more than words can say about your personal commitment against war and for those who gave their best for this country."

Carter drew prolonged applause when he said, "I think there's a special debt of gratitude on the part of the American people for those young men who went and served in Vietnam, because they have not been appreciated enough."

He added: "Although I came back from the war as some kind of hero, although I was not a hero, my son came back unappreciated, sometimes scorned by his peer group."

Carter served during the Korean War. His son, Jack, served in Vietnam.

The President noted that the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier has representatives of World War I, World War II and Korea but he said there is none from Vietnam because all bodies discovered so far have been identified.

Although this Veterans Day was a national holiday, nearly all the states will observe it Nov. 11, which will be the date of the national holiday again starting next year.

The confusion began in 1968 when Congress moved several holidays so they would always fall on Monday to create three-day weekends. Veterans groups vigorously opposed moving Veterans Day from Nov. 11.

That date had been observed as Armistice Day starting in 1919. It later was changed to Veterans Day.

Congress voted two years ago to move Veterans Day back to Nov. 11 but delayed it until next year to accommodate calendar makers.

$2 chair fools antique experts, sells for $9,000

Dearborn, Mich. (AP) — Message from one Rhode Island craftsman to antique experts who consider themselves infallible: ha ha ha. Armand LaMontagne says he built a chair that sold for $9,000 as a 350-year-old antique.

LaMontagne, a former policeman who thinks antique experts and museum officials are snooty, says in a story that appeared in Sunday's Detroit Free Press that he built the chair "for a good laugh. Those people think they're infallible, you know."

LaMontagne, 38, says he spent $2 for material and worked for two months in 1969 at building what came to be known as "the Great Brewster Chair."

"I'm sick to death of it!" said New Hampshire antique dealer Roger Bacon, who sold the chair to the Henry Ford Museum here. Donald Shelley, who purchased the chair for the museum before retiring as the institution's president, says he still believes it is real.

"I wish you wouldn't even print this kind of story. He (LaMontagne) is embarrassing everybody. This man is up to no good," Shelley said.

The Great Brewster was supposed to be only the third chair of its kind ever discovered — a relic of the pilgrim era, built as a throne for the ruling elder of the Pilgrim Church. Two similar chairs are on exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and Pilgrim Hall in Plymouth, Mass.

LaMontagne maintains that he has not made a cent from the chair. He says he planted it in a house in Maine where he knew antique dealers would find it. He never misrepresented the chair, he says.

Sure enough, it passed through the hands of two or three dealers before coming to Bacon and then, in 1970, to the Henry Ford Museum, which bragged about it at the time.

Robert Wheeler, the museum official now in charge of the discredited piece of furniture, is philosophical about the affair.

"It happens, damn it, and we're just going to have to live with it," he said.

"I don't think we feel that badly about the thing," he says. "It's still a great chair."

Church supports protection of civil liberties of homosexuals

Kansas City (AP) — The General Assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), although "neither approving nor condemning homosexuality," approved a resolution Monday supporting laws to protect the civil liberties of homosexuals.

Passed by a vote of 2,541 to 1,312 with 65 abstentions, the resolution calls for laws to "end the denial of civil rights and the violation of civil liberties for reasons of sexual orientation or preference."

The resolution also stated that homosexuals are victims of discrimination and that sodomy laws are unfairly and unevenly applied against them.

The measure also admitted that the church had contributed to the persecution of homosexuals and should now support legal reform concerning their civil rights.

One delegate argued that the phrase "neither approving nor condemning homosexuality" implied spiritual consent, but others insisted the church should favor protecting the rights of all groups in society.

About 11,000 persons are attending the assembly, which runs through Wednesday in Kansas City. The denomination claims 1.3 million members in the United States.

Vampire-attired prankster visits Washington family

Federal Way, Wash. (AP) — A family in this Seattle suburb says it's weary of being harassed by a prankster in vampire attire.

The family, which police say asked not to be identified, has had intermittent visits from the Dracula-type person over the past two years. Sunday night was the 10th or 11th time, police said.

"He hasn't done any harm. They're just a little tired of it," said police spokeswoman JoAnn Cratty.

Although he wears heavy makeup on his face — complete with a vampire scar — the family describes the man as young, tall and slender, said Ms. Cratty, who prefers that designation.

He wears a cape and black clothes and drives a black vehicle. Last spring on one occasion he drove a hearse. He merely smiles and escapes into the night.

Ms. Cratty said the visits come at irregular times and do not seem to coincide with symbolic occasions, such as Halloween or a full moon. But they're always at night.

1. NEW LISTING: Lovely 3 bedroom quality built by Firestone only last year. Located in Heritage Heights. This home is in immaculate condition, has a wood deck overlooking a large yard and a beautifully finished recroom, priced in the Mid $40's. Call now this home will not be on the market long.
2. NEW LISTING: 3 Bedroom home is an established neighborhood with new carpet, new kitchen, and newer 2 stall garage with built in work bench. This home is nicely decorated throughout and sets on a beautiful large lot with a nice patio. The low 30's price makes this the buy of the week. Call today.
3. SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE: For Dad: a 2 car garage and low maintaince brick and cedar siding exterior. For Mom; a large master bedroom wth ¾ bath and a great kitchen with lots of beautiful oak cabinets. For the Kids: a large fenced yard to play in and only 2 blocks from the popular Zeman Grade School. Your family needs a home like this. Call today.
4. NEED BEDROOMS? We have two 4 bedroom homes. One is north and one is south; one is older and one is newer. One is high 20's and one is high 30's. That's a lot of choice for two homes. You better call today to get the full details.
5. HE HUFFED AND HE PUFFED: but he couldn't blow this house down. Not this all brick 3 bedroom ranch built by Firestone. Even the strongest north winds won't shake this house with 2 stall garage, ¾ bath, and lots of custom built birch cabinets. Better call today and see how great protecting yourself from the wolf can be.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Astrological Forecast

By Sidney Omarr

Tuesday, October 25, 1977

Quotes of Note: "I was born a Taurus and I'll die a Taurus." — Joe Louis. "I would rather be a Taurus." — Barbra Streisand. "I am a Libra. I hate to make decisions." — Brigitte Bardot. "Leos are the best lovers!" — A motion picture starlet. "I wish I had known more about astrology when I was champion." — Max Baer. "I don't know about that astrology stuff!" — Muhammad Ali.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get what you want as barriers to progress are overturned. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. Home life emphasized — concessions, adjustments occur. Lead the way with understanding, compassion. One close to you wants reassurance concerning money security.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on hidden matters, hospitals, clubs, specialized publications and organizations. See through sham; get to heart of matters. Separate fact from wishful thinking. Glamorous individual seeks your counsel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on involvement, intensified relationship, responsibility and promotion. Popularity increases — prestige is on upswing. Superior admires you and does something to prove it. You're relieved of menial tasks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Obtain hint from Gemini message. Finish project. Express confidence. You get chance to prove a major contention. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Stick with number "9." Room is made for you at more elevated position. Aggressive, dynamic, attractive person becomes an important ally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight independent actions. Means take lead — express, imprint style, give full play to creativity. Aquarian is in picture. Travel and communication combine — some plans are subject to abrupt change. This ultimately works in your favor. Know it and don't brood!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your sense of timing improves. You make right contacts. Intuition enables you to know who is faking, giving, teaching, learning. Concern with meditation, occult subjects is indicated. Partner or mate wants to talk budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Leave fine is to be open-minded, not gullible. Be points, details for another time. Listen, observe, prepare, realize time can be utilized as a valuable ally. Forces tend to be scattered, routine changes, upheaval occurs in "legal department." Yes, you land on your feet and are invited to a party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valid hint from Libra message. Dig deep for information. Employment picture, recently discouraging, is due to improve. Another Scorpio figures prominently. The number "4" proves significant. A "square-jawed" person talks about streamlining services — and makes sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friend with "secret" confides, confesses and struggles to win your approval. Key is to be open-minded, not gullible. Be ready for quick changes, impulsive actions, on part of opposite sex. Some people may find you irresistible!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You conclude transaction. You learn where you stand. This applies to money and other areas. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio figure in picture. Your surroundings, desires are brought into sharp focus. Stick to number "6."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stick to facts — let others gossip and speculate. Your strength now lies in proven concepts, valid statistics. Short trips, relatives, messages rate high on schedule. Pisces figures prominently. A Virgo will appear as if from nowhere.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money, investments, emotional responses, persons from your past are all on agenda. Capricorn, Cancer individuals are spotlighted. You find what had been missing. Older individual lends benefit of experience — if you are receptive. Stick to number "8."

IF OCTOBER 25th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, perceptive, psychic, passionate, dedicated and stubborn. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. December should be outstanding for you, just as March was — 1977 has been a time of transition, meaning numerous changes, varying relationships, travel, lost-and-found opportunities. Next year, 1978, you make serious domestic realignments, could change residence. If single, you marry. If married, there could be an addition to family.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
